No Docus Needed For Now; Cong, BJP Set Up War Rooms

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bengaluru: The Election Commission of India is set to launch door-to-door enumeration visits in Karnataka from Tuesday, marking the beginning of its Special Intensive Revision in a month-long exercise scheduled to conclude on July 29. The drive seeks to cover 5.5 crore electors in the state.

Chief electoral officer Anbu Kumar Monday said enumeration forms will be given to all electors, whose names were on the rolls as of June 16 this year. The biggest challenge, however, is distribution of forms, their collection and digitization, he added.

Of the 68,000 officials working on SIR in the state, a total of 59,050 are booth-level officers (BLOs) deployed to cover 1.8 crore households in the state. Given the history of contentious SIR drives in other states, both Congress and BJP have cranked up their vigilance machinery in Karnataka, deploying personnel at booth level to ensure eligible voters retain their right and also help new or left-out voters join the rolls of eligible voters.

Congress has created two war rooms involving 370 people. BJP has established a multitier monitoring system with five-member teams at the constituency level.

Track II India-Pak talks not official, don't count: MEA

'Participants' Views Are Their Own, Not Govt's'

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Foreign secretary Vikram Misri dismissed reports in the past few months about an India-Pakistan "track II" dialogue, saying India takes no cognisance of such events that don't hold much value.

Responding to a media query in Seychelles, Misri said dozens of these events take place around the world on a variety of subjects. "There's nothing new, nothing special about these events. As far as we are concerned, these are private events organised by private parties," said the foreign secretary.

"I cannot speak for the govt of Pakistan, but as far as govt of India is concerned, there is no official participation, no official support or involvement, in these visits," Misri reiterated.

He said anybody from India who is participating in these events — retired diplomats, retired military officials, members of civil society — speak for themselves and represent their own point of view. "They do not in any way, they cannot in any way represent the view of govt of India," he said.

42% rain deficit: This June is set to be India's 3rd driest in 100 years

Amit.Bhattacharya
@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: This month is set to end as the third driest June India has seen in last 100 years. With just a day to go in the month, the countrywide rainfall deficit stands at 42%, indicating that El Niño may already be playing a role in depressing the monsoon in India.

The average rainfall recorded across the country in June so far stands at 92.2mm, against a normal of 157.7mm. Assuming there's good rainfall on Tuesday — the month's last day — June is likely to record around 100mm of rain in all. In the past 100 years (1927-2026), only two years have seen lower overall rainfall in June — 2009 (87.5mm) and 2014 (92.1mm), both within the past 20 years.

On the brighter side, as per IMD's projections, the first week of July is expected to bring better and well-distributed rains in most parts of the country, particularly central India, the region with the highest monsoon deficit so far.

Regulate coaching, make exams less coachable: Draft committee report

Manash.Gohain
@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: Spurred by rising concern over student stress, suicides in coaching hubs, dummy schools and safety lapses at private institutes, Centre is weighing a two-track response to the country's coaching economy — regulating the sector through a possible central law and redesigning entrance exams to make private coaching less decisive in JEE, NEET-UG and CUET-UG.

The reason: a 9-member panel set up by education ministry has concluded that dependence on coaching cannot be tackled only by inspecting institutes or penalising misleading ads. The problem, it found, is rooted as much in the design of entrance tests, weak confidence in board marks, dummy schooling and early-age exam preparation as in the commercial practices of coaching centres. The proposals are part of a report being finalised by the panel.

- Cap coaching for school students at 2-3 hrs daily and restrict intensive coaching to post-Class 12

Physio found dead at homestay in Nandi Hills; BF unconscious

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Chikkaballapur: A 26-year-old physiotherapist was found dead in a locked room at a homestay near Nandi Hills on Monday, while her boyfriend was found unconscious beside her. Police suspect he attempted suicide after killing her.

The victim, Sai Surabhi of Jayanagar in Bengaluru, worked at Sri Sathya Sai Hospital in Muddenahalli. Her boyfriend, Sanjeeth Ali, 25, a native of Kozhikode in Kerala — a mechanical engineer who also drives a cab in Bengaluru — was admitted to hospital and remains under observation.

Based on a complaint by Surabhi's mother, Geeta, who alleged a love jihad angle, police filed a murder case against Ali. According to cops, Ali checked into Nandi Skandgiri Heritage Homestay Saturday, though it was unclear when Surabhi joined him. The incident came to light Monday after the couple failed to check out. Maintenance not automatic if wife is earning more: K'taka HC

Vasantha.Kumar

Bengaluru: A court cannot automatically order a husband to pay maintenance just because the wife files a petition invoking provisions under the Domestic Violence Act, the Hindu Adoption and Maintenance Act, or the Code of Criminal Procedure, observed the Karnataka high court. The court must examine the facts and decide whether the wife is entitled to it, HC observed while granting relief to a man from Mysuru.

Justice Chillakur Sumalatha observed that where a wife is financially sound, earns more than her husband, and has no other responsibilities such as raising children, courts should not be inclined to grant maintenance merely on the assumption that a woman must be looked after by a man or a wife must invariably be maintained by her husband. The court said maintenance, be it interim or final, should be given only when it is established that the wife has no financial resources to maintain herself consistent with the standard of living enjoyed by her husband.

The petitioner-husband challenged the Dec 19, 2025, order passed by a Mysuru court directing him to pay Rs 20,000 as interim maintenance. The wife had filed an application against him and his family by invoking provisions under the Domestic Violence Act, 2005.

'Huge Investments, Yet Ecological Recovery Remains Incomplete'

Foam gone, but lake revival misses core issues: Report

Niranjan.Kaggere
@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: Nearly a decade after Bellandur Lake grabbed national attention for spewing toxic foam and catching fire, new research has found that the lake remains ecologically degraded because the Rs 179-crore restoration efforts have largely focused on engineering interventions while not adequately looking into its hydrology and ecological processes.

'Saving Bellandur Lake,' a report by residents' group Kempapura-Yemalur Bellandur Institution Association, draws on field investigations by residents as well as Indian Institute of Science (IISc) studies.

It notes that successive restoration efforts have largely centred on desilting, sewage diversion, aeration, floating wetlands, bioremediation, weed removal, and shoreline clean-up. "While these measures have helped reduce visible problems such as frothing and odour in certain stretches, they have failed to restore the lake's ecological functioning because they address the symptoms rather than the root causes of degradation," it states.

According to the study, Bellandur's restoration has largely neglected wetlands, floodplains, rajakaluves, biodiversity, and the natural hydrological flows that historically sustained the Bellandur-Varthur watershed.

Reiterating recommendations made by IISc and the Mahendra Jain Committee, the report states Bellandur cannot be revived through isolated engineering interventions alone.

Fragmented responsibilities among agencies such as Greater Bengaluru Authority, Bangalore Water Supply and Sewerage Board, Bangalore Development Authority, and minor irrigation department, coupled with land disputes, encroachments, tender delays, contractor-related issues, and weak inter-agency coordination, have slowed down implementation of restoration projects. Environmental groups cited in the report have pointed to the absence of clearly defined ecological recovery benchmarks, making it difficult to objectively assess the effectiveness of restoration steps.

KEY CHALLENGES
• Nearly 1,300 MLD of wastewater continues to enter Bellandur catchment
• Fragmented governance across GBA, BWSSB, BDA, KSPCB, minor irrigation department; overlapping responsibilities, weak accountability
• Encroachments on wetlands, floodplains, and rajakaluves continue to undermine flood resilience and groundwater recharge
• Rapid urbanisation outpaced ecological infrastructure across watershed
• Restoration largely focused on engineering interventions rather than watershed-scale ecological recovery
• Monitoring remains fragmented, with limited public disclosure of ecological performance indicators
MAJOR RECOMMENDATIONS
■ Stop treating Bellandur as wastewater basin by ensuring all sewage is intercepted, diverted, and treated before entering lake
■ Ensure 100% interception, diversion, and treatment of sewage before it enters Bellandur Lake
■ Protect lake's hydrological integrity by legally safeguarding wetlands, floodplains, and rajakaluves from future encroachments and infrastructure development
■ All proposals for bund road, transport infrastructure along the lake or inflow channel must undergo hydrological, ecological & climate resilience assessment
■ Restore Koramangala-Challaghatta Valley as one interconnected watershed, linking Bellandur with upstream and Varthur lakes
■ Establish single Bellandur Watershed Management Authority for coordination among agencies
■ Ensure continuous ecological monitoring through real-time sensors, satellite surveillance and annual ecological audits
■ Integrate Bellandur's restoration into Bengaluru's climate resilience strategy

Undermining restoration

The study notes that untreated sewage inflows, recurring nutrient loading, and poor catchment management continue to undermine restoration despite significant investments in sewage treatment infrastructure.

"Bellandur continues to receive untreated wastewater during periods of peak flow, while several rajakaluves remain partially blocked and hydrological connectivity across the catchment has not been fully restored. As a result, despite intermittent reductions in frothing, water quality remains poor because of untreated sewage, nutrient loading, and polluted urban runoff," it states, adding that ecological recovery remains incomplete.

The report calls for strict implementation of National Green Tribunal (NGT) directions. Over medium and long terms, it advocates decentralised wastewater treatment, catchment-wide wetland restoration, independent ecological audits, and the creation of a Bengaluru Urban Water and Wetland Authority to oversee integrated management of the city's interconnected lake systems.

Woman failed to furnish details of loans: Court

She sought Rs 1,13,515 per month for her sustenance and then Rs 50,000 towards litigation costs. Challenging it, the husband claimed they lived together for only two months. He added that his wife earns more than Rs 1 lakh a month and as per TDS, her salary is Rs 1,64,285 while his salary was only Rs 57,000.

While the wife agreed that she earns more than Rs 1 lakh, she argued that she had debts which she incurred towards the wedding. The judge observed the court ought to have discussed the wife's self-admitted higher income while passing the impugned order. The judge noted that the wife had failed to furnish details of the loans she had taken or EMIs she was paying towards their repayment. The judge held that the wife, with an income of Rs 1 lakh, can support herself and therefore the trial court need not direct the husband to pay Rs 20,000 maintenance.

Woman attempts suicide as school suspends teen son

Jahnavi@timesofindia.com

A SENIOR POLICE OFFICER SAID

Following the son's problems at school, the mother tried to take her own life by consuming insecticide. Fortunately, she's now out of danger. We've also interacted with the school management, who have agreed to take the student back. A case of attempt to suicide has been registered

Bengaluru: After spending over two weeks seeking the reinstatement of her suspended class 10 son, a woman allegedly attempted to end her life on the premises of a private school on St John's Road, east Bengaluru, Monday.

Sumithra, a homemaker from Ulsoor, allegedly consumed insecticide inside the washroom of the school after weeks of pleading with the management to revoke the suspension of her son. She is currently undergoing treatment at a hospital.

According to her husband, Kannan, an electrician, the couple had been making repeated visits to the school for over 15 days after their son was suspended following a physical altercation on June 13 with a class 9 student outside the school gates.

What began as a trivial fight left both boys injured, with the younger student suffering a head injury that required hospitalisation, a CT scan and treatment costing around Rs 10,000. A medicolegal case was registered at Bharathinagar police station before the two families eventually reached a compromise.

The suspension, however, remained. For Sumithra, every visit to the school ended the same way. "She would go every couple of days and plead with the principal. But she was treated very badly there. The authorities would mentally harass her by speaking in a condescending tone, make her wait in a dark room and threaten to never allow our son back into classes," Kannan alleged.

With her son studying in class 10 — a stage many parents view as crucial for a child's academic future — the uncertainty weighed heavily on her, he said.

On Monday, after yet another unsuccessful meeting with the school authorities, Sumithra allegedly told her husband she needed to use the washroom. Unknown to him, she had carried a bottle of insecticide from her home gardening kit. "When she came out, I noticed something strange dripping from her mouth. When I asked her what it was, she told me she had consumed insecticide," Kannan said.

He rushed her to Bowring Hospital in Shivajinagar, but since no ICU bed was available, she was shifted to a private hospital. "The doctors have said it will take at least three days before they can tell us if she is stable," he added.

The family also alleged that no one from the school visited the hospital or contacted them to enquire about Sumithra's condition.

"We later heard from other parents that the school was ready to allow our son back into class from July 1. But we've still not received any official communication," Kannan said.

He alleged the incident reflects a broader pattern since a recent change in the school's administration. "Even for trivial matters, students are suspended. We want people to know how schools can hold so much power over parents and students after we place our trust in them for our children's future," he said.

KEA urged to consider revaluated CBSE marks

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bengaluru: Many class 12 students of Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) have written to Karnataka Examinations Authority (KEA) to consider their revaluated marks for calculating Common Entrance Test (CET) ranks.

CET ranks are calculated by considering class 12 results and CET scores in a 50-50 ratio. It may be recalled that CBSE results were embroiled in controversy after students alleged that the on-screen marking resulted in various discrepancies in the marks awarded. After their papers were sent for revaluation, many received better marks. However, KEA released the CET results on June 7 using the results before revaluation.

"My daughter got two more marks after revaluation. Her CET score can improve drastically with the new marks, which could lead to a better college. We request KEA to consider this," said a parent. Another one said: "This is not an improvement exam, but an error by CBSE in awarding marks. Unlike in previous years, this is a different scenario, where students were not at fault at all."

Parents pointed out that Tamil Nadu withheld its results so as to include the CBSE revaluation results in drawing up its merit list. Additionally, the II PU-2 exam results were considered in Karnataka, while those following CBSE revaluation were skipped.

CANDIDATES DISADVANTAGED?

KEA, however, maintained that it does not have the practice of considering revaluated marks for CET ranks. "This will not be possible as the option-entry process has already begun," said H Prasanna, executive director of KEA.

The top CET ranks were largely secured by PU board students, as the scoring by CBSE students was generally low in the first valuation.

Seat matrices

Meanwhile, KEA said the seat matrix has arrived for all courses except BPharm, Pharma D, and yoga and naturopathy. The seat matrices for these courses have to come from the health and family welfare department.

In the final seat matrix released for engineering, there are altogether 1.6 lakh seats. Of these, 75,468 will be allotted through KEA. Comed-K will have 32,670 seats, while 52,143 are with the management quota.

As per the current KEA schedule, students can enter options until 10am Tuesday. Mock seat allotment results will be announced on July 6. Candidates will be allowed to modify until July 9.

Surabhi went to rehab, but Ali re-established contact: Mom

When police broke open the door, they found Surabhi dead on the bed with a rope tightly wound around her neck, while Ali was lying unconscious beside her. Investigators recovered a diary and some medicines from the room. Police suspect Ali consumed an overdose of sleeping pills in an apparent suicide bid. Geeta and Surabhi's maternal uncle Shankar Narayan alleged it was a case of "love jihad".

Geeta said Surabhi had joined Sri Sathya Sai Hospital about 10 days ago. She was staying at a rented accommodation in Chikkaballapur for work. She had told her family she would attend a Satsang gathering at the hospital Saturday and would stay there. The family had no clue that she joined Ali at a homestay.

According to Geeta, Ali had subjected Surabhi to prolonged harassment and introduced her to drugs and alcohol, following which the family admitted her to a rehab centre. However, once Surabhi was out of rehab, Ali re-established contact with her. Narayan said the two had known each other since her college days at Dayananda Sagar. While the family opposed the relationship because Surabhi had complained of harassment and torture, she continued to remain in touch with Ali.

Diary sent to experts

Chikkaballapur SP Kushal Chouksey said police were investigating the exact cause of Surabhi's death and why Ali lost consciousness. "Homestay records show Ali checked in on Saturday, but the caretaker is unsure when Surabhi joined him," the SP said, adding that the diary recovered from the room had been sent to handwriting experts for examination.

Jilted lover fatally stabs woman

Bengaluru: A 23-year-old woman was stabbed to death, allegedly by her jilted lover, in JC Nagar, Kurubarahalli, late on Sunday night. The victim is M Anjali of KP Agrahara.

Police have arrested the suspect, identified as Rajeev, 26, from Laggere, who works as an assistant at a used car unit. "Rajeev took her to a roadside eatery at 10pm. While eating egg and rice, Rajeev asked her why she was avoiding him. Anjali replied that her family was opposing their relationship since Rajeev has a criminal record, with cases like attempt to murder and robbery registered in his name," an investigating officer said.

Rajeev made a futile attempt to convince her. "When she firmly refused, Rajeev stabbed her in the neck," the officer said. TNN

Dog shelter plan hits a ruff patch as NGOs flag design & staffing issues

Sanjay.Murty@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: Even as officials of Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) remain confident of beginning relocation of stray dogs from institutional areas by July-end, significant hurdles remain. The biggest challenge lies not in relocating the animals, but in putting in place an efficient and sustainable system to manage the proposed dog shelters.

Despite their experience in Animal Birth Control (ABC) programmes, NGOs have shown little enthusiasm for participating in the tendering process to manage the proposed dog shelters. Their reluctance stems from a combination of concerns, including persistent labour shortage, uncertainty over compliance with pollution control regulations and operational difficulties posed by the design and layout of shelters.

A GBA source said the five city corporations are independently handling the tender process for appointing agencies to manage the shelters. "GBA is not interfering with who they are appointing. We are only collecting status updates on the tenders and monitoring the progress," the official said, adding at least four corporations are expected to begin relocating dogs by the end of July.

According to the official, shelters in North and South corporations have already been completed, while those in Central and West corporations are under construction. The shelter planned for East corporation is yet to be built.

However, NGOs involved in ABC activities say taking on the additional responsibility of shelter management is not feasible. The Veterinary Society for Animal Welfare and Rural Development (VSAWRD), which is currently carrying out ABC operations for the Bengaluru Central City Corporation, has not participated in the second round of tenders for managing dog shelters. "We were asked to participate the first time due to pressure following the Supreme Court order. This time we did not participate. We are already facing a labour shortage while conducting ABC activities. Managing shelters is an entirely different and much more difficult task," VSAWRD staff member Mastan told TOI.

Problems in design

The founder of another NGO said the shelter design itself is one of the primary reasons the organisations are hesitant to bid for the contracts. "Conclusions regarding the shelter's suitability should be based on a comprehensive assessment by qualified experts, including veterinary, environmental, engineering, and public health professionals. To my knowledge, the Karnataka Animal Welfare Board has not conducted a detailed on-site inspection of the shelter. Moreover, no NGO in the city has experience handling 500 dogs in such a small area," the founder said.

TRYING TO STRIKE BALANCE: BNCC CHIEF

Bengaluru North City Corporation commissioner Pommala Sunil Kumar said the dog shelter at Medi Agrahara has been completed and that the corporation is in the process of issuing a work order for its management. "We will issue the work order in a day or two to the lone participant," he told TOI. "We have been receiving regular calls from residents requesting us to relocate aggressive dogs. Apart from housing dogs relocated from institutional areas, the shelters will also help us observe and manage aggressive dogs."

He added that while some animal welfare activists oppose the relocation drive and question whether the dogs are actually aggressive, the corporation is attempting to strike a balance between public safety and animal welfare. "A section of animal lovers oppose our efforts and are not convinced of these dogs' aggressive nature. We are doing our best to address the issue while adhering to the Supreme Court's orders," Sunil Kumar said.

Notice to govts over BTC shift to Kunigal Stud Farm

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bengaluru: The high court Monday ordered notices to the state and central govts in response to a PIL challenging the proposed shifting of Bengaluru Turf Club (BTC) to the sprawling 457-acre Kunigal Stud Farm.

A division bench of Chief Justice Vibhu Bakhru and Justice KS Hemalekha also ordered notices to the National Biodiversity Board, Karnataka State Biodiversity Board and BTC.

PIL QUESTIONS MOVE

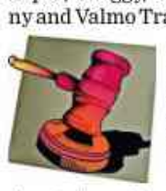
The PIL petition, filed by Bengaluru resident Vijay Nishanth, claimed the history of Kunigal Stud Farm, the oldest in the country, could be traced to the Tipu Sultan era, when it was used for breeding horses for his cavalry. The farm, he said, is an ecologically significant landholding consisting of grazing lands, heritage tree cover, fodder cultivation, flora and fauna, etc.

The petitioner claimed the stud farm is under threat pursuant to the March 6 govt order proposing the shifting of BTC and allied activities. Introducing commercial and racing activities would lead to fragmentation of its integrated ecosystem and cause permanent ecological degradation, the petitioner said. He sought the high court's intervention to ensure preservation and protection of land.

Gig workers' Act challenged in HC

Bengaluru: A petition has been filed before the high court challenging the constitutional validity of Karnataka Platform Based Gig Workers (Social Security and Welfare) Act, 2025, and allied rules.

Internet and Mobile Association of India, as well as platforms like Eternal Ltd, Zepto, Swiggy, Urban Company and Valmo Transportation, have sought the HC's intervention in the matter. The petition is yet to be listed.



Apart from the state legislation, the notification constituting Karnataka Platform Based Gig Workers Welfare Board and Feb 12 govt order have been challenged in the petition. In addition, showcause notices alleging non-cooperation in implementation of the Act, including failure to constitute IDRCs, failure to respond to communications relating to onboarding and use of software for payment of welfare fees and failure to furnish information sought by the authorities, have been challenged too. Officials Are Set To Visit Your Home; Political Parties Form Their Own Teams To Track Activity

SIR will ring your doorbell

ALL YOU SHOULD KNOW & DO TO CAST YOUR VOTE

Starting Tuesday, Election Commission's Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls will be carried out in six stages over nearly 3 months. The exercise involves fresh verification of voters and correction of electoral records. Here is a step-by-step guide

WHAT IS SIR?

SIR is a voter verification exercise conducted by Election Commission to update electoral rolls through house-to-house verification, family mapping and removal of duplicate, incorrect or ineligible entries. Existing voter ID holders are also covered.

HOW MEGA EXERCISE WILL UNFOLD ACROSS KARNATAKA

1. June 30-July 29: Door-to-door verification by booth-level officers (BLOs), distribution of forms and voter verification
2. Aug 5: Publication of draft electoral roll
3. Aug 5-Sep 4: Filing of claims and objections
4. Aug 5-Oct 3: Disposal of claims and objections
5. Oct 7: Publication of final electoral roll

Why is SIR different from routine revision?

- Existing voters also undergo fresh verification
- Family relationships and historical voter records checked
- Greater emphasis placed on data consistency

What is progeny (family) mapping?

- Links every voter with parents or spouse
- Helps identify duplicate or ineligible entries
- Incorrect information on system may trigger further verification

Why do records become unmapped?

If voter is absent, shifted or dead or in case of duplication

Who is most likely to face verification issues?

- Tenants and recent migrants
- People with name mismatches across documents
- Families using different initials or surnames
- Senior citizens unavailable during BLO visits
- Voters with incomplete or outdated records

Can you lose your vote even if you have voter ID?

Voter ID alone does not guarantee inclusion in electoral roll. If records cannot be verified in case of discrepancies, further scrutiny will follow

What documents help during verification?

- Birth certificate
- Passport
- Educational certificate by recognised boards/universities
- Permanent residence certificate issued by state authorities
- Caste certificate
- Land or house allotment certificate
- Forest rights certificate
- NRC entry (where applicable)
- Aadhaar
- Govt family register
- Identity card/certificate/document issued before July 1, 1987, by govt department, local authority, LIC, PSU bank or post office
- Identity card/pension payment order issued to regular employee/pensioner of central/state govt or PSUs

Which forms should voters use?

- Form 6: New inclusion or shifting constituency
- Form 7: Objection or deletion
- Form 8: Correction of name, age, gender, address or photograph

What should voters do?

- Check their name in electoral roll
- Verify personal and family details
- Correct errors immediately
- Keep supporting documents ready
- Submit appropriate statutory form if required

Why are applications rejected?

- Wrong form submitted
- Name mismatch across records
- Invalid or unclear documents
- Incomplete address proof
- Missing family linkage

What if someone files Form 7 against you?

- Respond with valid address and identity proof
- Attend hearings if notified
- Submit supporting documents within prescribed time

Key takeaways

- Check voter details early
- Correct errors before final roll is published
- Ensure names, addresses and family details are consistent across records
- Do not assume that voter ID alone guarantees inclusion in electoral roll

9,000 BLOs to work in Bengaluru

Bengaluru: Nearly 9,000 BLOs will fan out across the city from Tuesday as SIR of electoral rolls enters its field-verification phase.

The enumeration drive will continue till July 29, during which BLOs will visit every household to distribute enumeration forms and assist voters in filling them. Residents must complete, sign and return the forms to BLOs, who have been instructed to make at least three visits to collect the forms if voters are unavailable during the initial visit.

Ahead of the exercise, Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) officials completed pre-SIR mapping of electoral records. Of the city's over 1 crore voters across 28 assembly constituencies, 76.3% have been mapped by matching entries in the 2025 electoral roll with the 2002 one. Around 24.6 lakh voters remain to be mapped during the ongoing exercise.

GBA chief commissioner Maheshwar Rao urged voters not to panic if their names haven't been mapped or even if they cannot be traced back to the 2002 voter list. "In case this happens, voters can submit details with relevant documents to the BLO to ensure their names are retained in the draft," he said.

Voters can also download the enumeration form, fill it online and upload the supporting documents. However, BLOs will still conduct a physical visit to verify the submitted information. TNN

Audio clip adds to buzz on Vijayendra's possible exit

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bengaluru: A purported audio clip allegedly featuring former CM DV Sadananda Gowda discussing the possible removal of BY Vijayendra as Karnataka BJP president has added to the growing speculation over the latter's future.

The controversy comes amid heightened speculation over the removal of Vijayendra following the recent cross-voting episode in the legislative council elections.

The audio, which has gone viral on social media, allegedly contains a conversation suggesting that Vijayendra should continue until Oct, by which time he would have nearly completed three years as state BJP president, before being replaced to avoid internal unrest.

In the clip, the voice attributed to Gowda says the party should avoid creating controversy and instead prepare the ground over the next few months before effecting a leadership change. Another voice alleges that BJP national general secretary (organisation) BL Santhosh and Union minister Pralhad Joshi are playing a "double game". The voice attributed to Gowda responds that he only believes in God.

Gowda, however, dismissed the clip as fake and denied that the voice was his.

"The audio clip circulating on social media is fake. The voice is not mine. I do not know anything about it and will not respond to false audio clips or videos attributed to me," the former union minister said.

BJP MP Kota Srinivas Poojary urged caution, saying the authenticity of the clip should be verified before any conclusions are drawn. He said Vijayendra was appointed by the party's national leadership and that party workers should cooperate with him till the party leadership decides on his future.

Cong, BJP set up war rooms as revision kicks off

Sandeep.Moudgal@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: As the Special Intensive Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls begins Tuesday, Congress and BJP have set up extensive support networks to help voters complete the mega exercise and ensure eligible names are not deleted from the rolls.

Congress has created two war rooms involving about 370 people. While the party's own war room has 70 members, another 300-member team is being run by an allied NGO network to independently monitor the process across the state.

According to the party, two members have been assigned to every district to monitor developments, while the NGO has deployed one person in each assembly constituency to submit daily reports.

Rajya Sabha MP GC Chandrashekar said the Congress war room would have one person on the ground and another at the party office to compile complaints from voters.

BJP has also established a multi-tier monitoring system with five-member teams at the constituency level, 20-member district teams and a 25-member state war room. It has also formed five-member booth advisory groups to accompany booth-level officers during the door-to-door verification.

"We have also constituted a booth advisory group (BAG) which will accompany the BLOs for the door-to-door enumeration. Each BAG will be a five-member team," said BJP SIR convenor P Rajeev.

CONGRESS SEEKS SIR POSTPONEMENT OF EXERCISE OVER BLO DATA 'DISCREPANCIES'

A delegation of Karnataka Congress Monday urged the chief electoral officer (CEO) to postpone SIR, alleging discrepancies in details of booth-level officers (BLOs) and BLO supervisors published on the official website. In a representation, the party alleged that two separate lists available on the website contain conflicting names and contact details of BLOs and BLO supervisors, creating confusion among voters, political parties and election officials.

Congress claimed the discrepancies were noticed in multiple polling areas, two assembly constituencies, where different names and mobile numbers were shown for the same officials. It argued that such inconsistencies could hamper voter enrolment during SIR exercise.

DCM proposes B'luru-Lima sister city pact

Bengaluru: Deputy chief minister G Parameshwara has proposed a sister city agreement between Bengaluru and Lima, Peru's capital, to strengthen cooperation in trade, education and healthcare. Speaking at an event marking 63 years of diplomatic ties between India and Peru and the latter's 205th independence day, he said Karnataka is keen to deepen engagement with the South American nation. Parameshwara highlighted Karnataka's leadership in IT and biotechnology and said the proposed partnership could lay the foundation for boosting bilateral trade between India and Peru to $10 billion in the future. The event was attended by diplomats, officials and business representatives. TNN

CM: No plan to privatise power corpns

Bengaluru: Amid concerns over the possible privatisation of electricity distribution in Karnataka following reports that Tata Power Company has sought a distribution licence from Karnataka Electricity Regulatory Commission (KERC), chief minister DK Shivakumar and energy minister KJ George Monday sought to allay employees' fears, stating state govt has not taken any decision to privatise power corporations.

Speaking at a felicitation programme, organised by Federation of Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Employees' Unions and Associations at Palace Grounds, Shivakumar said he alone cannot unilaterally decide whether power corporations should remain free from privatisation and added the matter will be discussed at the cabinet meeting before any decision is taken.

"You are protesting against privatisation of power corporations. Everyone is waiting to hear what I will say. But this issue first came up in 2003. Who brought in the law related to it? It was BJP govt. None of you raised your voice then..." the CM said. TNN

BLOs cannot make changes sans request

BLOs — the ground force in voter-revision exercise — will visit houses and paste colour-coded stickers: Purple means enumeration forms are distributed; red means houses were found locked or door shut. For those not at home, stickers will specify tentative dates of the next two visits and slip the enumeration form under the door.

"Each BLO will visit an average of 900 houses," said Anbu Kumar. BLOs are the custodian of rolls, but they cannot make changes without the voter seeking it.

Kumar said BLOs are supposed to digitise filled-in forms. If they do not get internet on the go, BLO facilitation centres with Wi-Fi are set up in each taluk to tide over technical issues.

3 students die in bldg collapse

Three undergraduate students died and as many suffered injuries when the roof of a two-storey commercial building in Devadurga, Raichur district, collapsed on them Sunday evening. The students staying in govt-owned Dr BR Ambedkar hostel were sticking posters for their short film, Love, at a building located at New Bus Stand of the town.

The building, said to be 50 years old, has several shops on its two floors.

Sources said students were standing close to the building when the staircase and roof of an extended portion of the building collapsed suddenly. While Nagaraj Kyadigera, 22, and Ravikumar Samudra, 21, were declared dead, Arjun, 21, succumbed in hospital. TNN

JD(S), BJP seek FIR against Congress MLA

Bengaluru: JD(S) youth wing president Nikhil Kumaraswamy Monday demanded that state govt register an FIR against Congress MLA Pradeep Eshwar, alleging he instigated the crowd during a Kempegowda Jayanti programme in Chikkaballapur where a slipper was hurled.

SLIPPER CASE

Nikhil, who visited the nine JD(S) and BJP workers lodged at Anakanur sub-jail in Chikkaballlapur, alleged that innocent party workers had been deliberately targeted. He objected to police registering a suo motu case, claiming there was no offence serious enough to warrant such an action and alleged the FIR was filed under political pressure.

BJP MP K Sudhakar also sought an FIR against the MLA, demanding that he be named as accused no. 1. He said the MLA was responsible for the incident. TNN

In a clarification regarding the story published on June 27 in these columns (School van door opens, four fall off), it has been confirmed that the students were from Amara Jyothi Public School and travelling in their private van. The school coordinator said no one was injured in the incident.

Further, Amara Jyothi Public School and Amara Jyothi English School are two separate institutions and do not come under the same management. TNN

Soccer match aftermath: Gang of 4 kidnaps, robs 2 youngsters

Chaithanya.Swamy
@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: A late-night outing after watching a FIFA World Cup match turned into a nightmare for two young men from Nagaland, who were allegedly kidnapped, robbed and abandoned by a four-member gang recently.

THREE DETAINED

The complainant, Khyobenthung A Murry, 23, a management trainee at a coffee outlet in Kempegowda International Airport (KIA) and a resident of a paying guest accommodation in Chikkajala, is originally from Wokha district in Nagaland. His friend Brilliance, 22, a native of Manipal and residing in Hunasamaranahalli, hosted him at a friend's home in Doddajala, where the group watched a FIFA World Cup match on June 17 and had dinner.

Around 4am, Brilliance was dropping Murry back to his PG on a scooter when they were intercepted near Decathlon outlet in Chikkajala by four miscreants on two scooters.

They allegedly chased and stopped the duo's scooter before snatching its key. They were then taken to a secluded under-construction building nearby.

"The miscreants forced me to part with cash and valuables. When I refused, they threatened to kill Brilliance," Murry told police. He was then forced to transfer Rs 1,000 through a QR code using his mobile phone.

The gang did not stop there. "They took my debit card and forced me to reveal the PIN. I again refused, but they continued issuing death threats and coerced me into revealing the PIN," he said. The accused then went to a nearby ATM kiosk and withdrew Rs 15,000 from his account.

After the cash withdrawal, the accused reportedly robbed the victims of three mobile phones, including an iPhone 13 belonging to Murry, an iPhone XR owned by Brilliance, and a Redmi phone. One of the suspects also took control of the victims' scooter.

The two friends were then separated and made to ride on scooters used by the miscreants. They were transported to different locations before being abandoned near Hebbal flyover. The gang fled immediately after leaving them there, returning their scooter.

Traumatised by the incident, the victims first informed their family members before approaching police and lodging a formal complaint on June 22. Chikkajala police analysed CCTV footage at the ATM kiosk and other places and detained three miscreants for questioning. Efforts are on to secure the fourth accused.

The universe runs on principles. Nature abides by them. Science follows them. So does Ayurved. For thousands of years, it's principles have been practised, tested, and passed down.
Not as belief, but as proof. Proof of precision. Proof of balance.
Proof that when you work with nature's own intelligence, healing follows.
Principles are Siddhant. They are rules. They are of healing.
And when those rules are followed completely, something remarkable happens. A restoration. The kind that works with the body, not around it. The kind that resets.
We've spent over 150 years in understanding these principles, and practising them honestly. Because Ayurved doesn't run on approximation. It begins with the right measure. It moves with the right discipline. It delivers through balance.
Like nature, its form can adapt. But it's Siddhant cannot. Because the moment they do, it stops being Ayurved.

Karnataka powers up, ranks fifth in renewable energy potential

Wind & Solar Drive State's Growth Now

Vindhya.Pabolu
@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: Karnataka has the fifth-highest renewable energy potential among Indian states, according to new govt data, and is also among the country's leading states in terms of installed renewable energy capacity.

The latest 'Energy Statistics India 2026' report shows that Karnataka has an estimated renewable energy potential of more than 4 lakh MW, accounting for 8.6% of India's total. Only Rajasthan, Maharashtra, Gujarat, and Andhra Pradesh rank higher. Together with Madhya Pradesh, these six states hold more than 70% of the country's renewable energy potential, making them central to India's clean energy ambitions. The report points to a broader national trend. India's estimated renewable energy potential has reached 47 lakh MW, with solar accounting for more than 71% of that capacity. Wind contributes nearly a quarter, while hydro, biomass, and bagasse make up the rest.

Karnataka's strengths lie in both wind and solar. The state has an estimated wind potential of nearly 1.7 lakh MW, third highest in the country after Rajasthan and Maharashtra, while its solar potential stands at more than 2.2 lakh MW. These two resources together account for nearly all of Karnataka's renewable potential.

Infra expansion

The state's existing renewable infrastructure also continues to expand. As of March 31, 2025, Karnataka had an installed grid-connected renewable energy capacity of 20,228 MW, up from 17,753 MW a year earlier, registering growth of nearly 14%. Solar power accounted for the largest share at 9,680 MW, followed by wind at 7,351 MW. Even so, Karnataka trails Rajasthan, Gujarat, and Tamil Nadu, which all have higher installed renewable capacity, with Rajasthan widening its lead at 33,725 MW. Karnataka itself has now moved ahead of Maharashtra, whose installed renewable capacity stood at 19,354 MW as of March 2025, reflecting intense competition among states to add renewable generation.

Karnataka also leads in conventional hydropower. The report notes that while the northern region has the highest overall hydropower capacity, Karnataka has the highest installed hydropower capacity at 3.6 GW.

STATE'S INFRASTRUCTURE SEES STEADY EXPANSION

As of March 31, 2025, Karnataka had an installed grid-connected renewable energy capacity of 20,228 MW, up from 17,753 MW a year earlier, registering growth of nearly 14%. Solar power accounted for the largest share at 9,680 MW, followed by wind at 7,351 MW.

Karnataka itself has now moved ahead of Maharashtra, whose installed renewable capacity stood at 19,354 MW as of March 2025, reflecting intense competition among states to add renewable generation.

Beyond renewables, Karnataka also leads in conventional hydropower. The report notes that while the northern region has the highest overall hydropower capacity, Karnataka has the highest installed hydropower capacity among individual states at 3.6 GW.

Renewable electricity
Nationally, renewable electricity is expanding much faster than conventional thermal power. Installed renewable energy capacity rose by nearly 15% in 2024-25, while thermal capacity grew by just 1.5%, signalling a gradual shift in India's electricity mix. Grid-connected renewable capacity increased by 20% in a year, from more than 1.4 lakh MW to over 1.7 lakh MW. Solar alone now accounts for more than 61% of installed renewable capacity.

Dominance of coal
Despite the rapid expansion of renewables, coal continues to dominate India's broader energy system. It still accounts for nearly 79% of the country's domestic energy supply, illustrating the scale of the challenge as India works towards cleaner energy while meeting rising demand.

Top 5 states by highest renewable energy potential (as of March 31, 2025)

		Share
1	Rajasthan: 11,14,794 MW	23.7%
2	Maharashtra: 6,71,024 MW	14.3%
3	Gujarat: 4,27,954 MW |	9.1%
4	Andhra Pradesh: 4,27,933 MW	9.1%
5	Karnataka: 4,04,227 MW	8.6%

India (overall): 47,04,043 MW potential

Source: Energy Statistics India, 2026

"The potential for renewable energy is estimated using factors such as geographical area, solar radiation and wind speeds. States like Rajasthan, Maharashtra, Gujarat, Karnataka and Tamil Nadu rank higher because of all the favourable conditions. Karnataka has substantial solar and wind potential and has consistently increased its installed renewable energy capacity. In the past two years, Karnataka has added the highest wind power capacity among all states, an achievement recognised by the ministry of new and renewable energy. Land availability is a key factor to add renewable capacity — states having large stretches of barren, uncultivated, and sparsely populated land have been aggressive in adding capacity

'Pay and recover': HC orders insurer to compensate family

Court boosts payout for kin of Kenya-employed man

Times News Network

Vasantha.Kumar
@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: Karnataka high court directed an insurance company to compensate the family of a man who died after falling from a multi-utility vehicle (MUV), holding that accident victims should not be left without relief merely because of technical policy exclusions.

The case arose after Shivanand Khannanavar suffered fatal injuries on falling from a Mahindra Jeep that was allegedly being driven in a rash and negligent manner on April 26, 2010, along NH-4 in Belagavi district. Following his death, his wife, children, and mother approached the motor accident claims tribunal (MACT) seeking compensation.

The tribunal found that the accident was due to the negligence of the Jeep driver and awarded the family a compensation of Rs 7.3 lakh. However, it relieved the insurance company of liability and directed the vehicle owner, MB Malagoudannavar, alone to pay the sum.

The insurer argued that the vehicle was covered under an "act only" insurance policy, which is the most basic form of motor insurance required by law. Such policies generally cover liability towards third parties — people outside the vehicle who suffer injury or damage due to an accident — but do not automatically cover occupants unless an additional premium is paid.

According to the insurer, the deceased was travelling as an occupant of the vehicle and therefore did not fall within the category of persons covered under the policy. Since no extra premium was paid to extend coverage to passengers, the insurer contended that it had no legal obligation to compensate the family.

Accepting this argument, the tribunal held that the insurance company was not liable and directed the vehicle owner to pay the compensation. Challenging this finding, the victim's family approached the high court.

After perusing the materials on record, Justice Ravi V Hosmani noted that the only issue was whether the insurer could completely escape liability because the policy did not specifically cover the deceased.

Relying on Supreme Court's decision in Sunita and Ors. vs United India Insurance Co. Ltd case, the judge applied the "pay and recover" principle — a legal mechanism under which the insurer is directed to first pay compensation to the victim or the victim's family and is then permitted to recover the amount from the vehicle owner if there has been a breach of policy conditions.

Justice Hosmani directed United India Insurance Company to pay a modified compensation amount of Rs 14 lakh to the claimants and recover the amount from the insured thereafter.

Forcing the family to pursue the vehicle owner for compensation would defeat the welfare objective of the Motor Vehicles Act, which is intended to provide timely relief to accident victims and their dependants, the judge further noted while partly allowing both appeals filed before the court.

FATAL ACCIDENT

The family of the deceased — Shankar Poojary — will get Rs 84.4 lakh compensation with 6% interest, as against Rs 33 lakh awarded by the tribunal at Kundapur

Bengaluru: Considering that the deceased was employed in Kenya, was having a good income and frequently sending money to his family members for five years prior to his death in an accident, Karnataka high court enhanced the compensation amount by Rs 51.3 lakh.

The family of the deceased — Shankar Poojary — will get Rs 84.4 lakh compensation with 6% interest, as against Rs 33 lakh awarded by the tribunal at Kundapur.

When Poojary was travelling as a passenger in a Maruti Omni on April 22, 2013, a speeding tipper truck collided with it at Haklady in Kundapura taluk. Poojary succumbed to his injuries on May 30 of that year.

His parents, wife and two minor children approached the tribunal, seeking compensation, contending that the deceased had been earning Rs 50,000 per month while working in Kenya as a hotel manager.

However, the tribunal assessed his income at Rs 18,000 per month and ordered Rs 33 lakh in compensation, comprising Rs 29.5 lakh towards loss of dependency, along with 6% interest. Not satisfied with the same, the family moved the high court.

A division bench comprising Justices Jayant Banerji and Tara Vitasta Ganju, pointed out that Poojary, who was working in Kenya, was earning in foreign currency since 2009, while the accident took place five years later. The claimants proved that he was earning approximately Rs 72,000 per month in 2009 which rose to Rs 91,200 in 2011, it said.

"Accordingly, deducting 30% from an average income of Rs 70,000 per month for the purposes of income tax leviable, an income of Rs 50,000 per month can be fixed," the division bench observed.

The division bench modified the compensation amount under loss of dependency to Rs 78.7 lakh and directed United India Insurance Company, the insurer of the tipper truck, to pay the enhanced compensation amount of Rs 51.3 lakh along with 6% interest.

Vande Bharat sleeper train to V'pura likely in four months

Anush.S@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: A Vande Bharat sleeper train to Vijayapura from Bengaluru will soon hit the tracks, said industries minister MB Patil Monday, adding that Union minister of state for railways V Somanna assured him of the same.

The interaction between the two ministers took place at the inauguration of a railway overbridge at Channapatna. Patil said Somanna responded to his proposal and announced that VB sleeper train service to Vijayapura district will start in the next 3-4 months. He said all cities situated within 100km of Bengaluru will be connected with a quadrupled rail track.

EXPANDING NETWORK

Patil hinted at resumption of the Whitefield-Kolar quadrupling project. Additionally, survey for quadrupling of Bengaluru-Mysuru line will also kick off soon.

Coimbatore-Mumbai train gets Yelahanka stop

From now, Coimbatore-Lokmanya Tilak Express will have an additional stoppage at Yelahanka, the second Mumbai-bound train to halt at the station. 11013/11014 Lokmanya Tilak Terminus (Mumbai)-Coimbatore-Lokmanya Tilak Terminus (Mumbai) Express was inaugurated in 1998 and had stops at KSR Bengaluru and Bengaluru Cantonment stations.

After flagging off the train from V Somanna said the additional stoppage will benefit a large number of passengers from the area.

RSS defamation plaint: Case against Priyank & Nalapad

Times News Network

Bengaluru: A special court for cases against elected representatives triable by a magistrate in Bengaluru issued summons to home minister Priyank Kharge and state youth Congress president Mohammed Haris Nalapad, directing them to appear before it on July 21.

The summons were issued in response to a complaint alleging that they made defamatory remarks against Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS).

The complaint was filed by Tejas A, an RSS member and resident of Bengaluru, in Nov last year. It had also named former minister Dinesh Gundu Rao. The court, however, dropped allegations against him.

The complaint was filed close on the heels of the govt circular directing private organisations to seek prior permission before holding events on govt premises such as schools and parks. The circular was allegedly aimed at curbing activities of the RSS.

Incidentally, Priyank Kharge also wrote to then chief minister Siddaramaiah in Oct 2025, requesting a ban on RSS activities on govt premises.

Priyank Kharge subsequently posted allegedly derogatory remarks against the RSS on social media.

UP college principal drives around with body of clerk he killed on campus

A principal of a govt-aided inter college in Etah district was arrested early Monday for allegedly strangling a clerk to death after repeatedly hitting his face with a brick at the campus over a paperwork feud.

According to police, the principal, Krishna Kumar Pandey, 58, was found driving around the UP district with the body of Rahul Pandey, 35, in his vehicle in order to dump him somewhere in neighbouring Kasganj district, about 22 km away. Krishna was caught with his vehicle after an 'unknown' resident alerted local police on 'Dial 112'.

Etah's ASP, Shwetabh Pandey, said, "On Sunday evening, the principal had an argument with the clerk, and in a fit of rage, killed him. He thereafter placed the body in his vehicle and was found driving towards Kasganj's Patiyali area at night."

SC to hear BPCL plea against Karnataka HC ethanol order

Says Reopening Allocations May Hit 20% Petrol Blending Goal

Dhananjay.Mahapatra @timesofindia.com

BP said EBP programme is key to India's clean-energy transition, being directed at crude-oil substitution, foreign exchange savings and support to agricultural economy

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday agreed to hear on Wednesday a plea filed by an Oil Marketing Company (OMC) claiming that Karnataka high court's recent order directing the reopening of ethanol allocation for 2025-26, which has already been concluded and implemented, would destabilise the national policy of 20% ethanol blending for petrol.

Challenging HC's order directing OMCs to consider enhancement of ethanol allocation to VINP Distilleries and Sugars, attorney general R Venkataramani requested a bench of Justices M M Sundresh and Sheel Nagu for an urgent hearing on Bharat Petroleum's plea, which pointed out that the ethanol supply contracts were concluded in Oct 2025.

Venkataramani said the ethanol allocation exercise attained finality on Oct 17, 2025, and allocations were communicated to 378 suppliers for a total supply of 1,050 crore litres of ethanol, of which 680 crore litres had already been supplied by them by June 18. If one supplier's quota was enhanced, other similarly placed suppliers would claim parity, thus opening the floodgates for litigation and putting the supply chain in complete disarray, he said.

Bharat Petroleum is the industry coordinator for ethanol blended petrol (EBP) programme for the prevailing 20% blending target for petrol, for which cumulative offers for supply of 1,759 crore litres were received pursuant to a tender notice. It allocated procurement quantities to various suppliers for a total of 1,048 crore litres of ethanol.

BP said EBP programme is key to India's clean-energy transition, being directed at crude-oil substitution, foreign exchange savings, environmental benefits and support to agricultural economy. "Since ethanol supply year 2014-15, ethanol blending by public sector OMCs has resulted in expeditious payments to farmers of about Rs 1,43,000 crore, foreign exchange savings of more than Rs 1,63,000 crore, a net CO2 reduction of 830 lakh metric ton and crude-oil substitution of 277 lakh metric ton, with procurements having grown from 38 crore litres in 2013 to 1,040 litres in 2024-25," it said.

Challenging VINP's claim for supply of 9.9 crore litres of ethanol as against the allocation for supply of 3.92 crore litres, the petitioner OMC said the private supplier cannot claim an absolute right to supply ethanol based on its designed production capacity, to the detriment of other suppliers, as allocations have been made to vendors in almost all states without any discriminatory treatment.

At ₹42.8 cr, Kol artist's work sells 15 times more than estimate

Priyanka.Dasgupta @timesofindia.com

Ganesh Pyne's 'The Conversation'

Kolkata: June is the happiest month for all those who love Ganesh Pyne's works. At the June 21-23, AstaGuru Auction House, led by his 1977 tempera painting "The Conversation", sold for a staggering Rs 12.10 crore. On June 11, Pyne's masterpiece, "The Fisherman" (1979), shattered his previous auction record at Christie's London. Selling for an astonishing $5.13 million (approximately Rs 42.8 crore), the tempera-on-canvas work blew past its low estimate by more than 15 times and forced a massive 100% surge over his previous record.

"The Conversation," a 1977 work by Pyne, portrays a skeletal woodcutter resting beneath a tree with his axe abandoned at his side. A white bird appears to be in an enigmatic exchange with him, leaving the viewer to wonder if he is simply resting or has passed away — a question that heightens the painting's unsettling stillness. According to Sunny Chandiramani, director of Client Relations at AstaGuru Auction House, the work is quintessentially Pyne: infused with twilight light, metaphorical figures, and shadowy spaces that blur the line between reality and dreams. "The skeletal anatomy of the figure echoes the exposed roots and hollowed knots of the surrounding trees, reinforcing Pyne's meditation on mortality and decay. Yet, amidst the melancholy atmosphere, the descending bird introduces a fragile suggestion of continuity, dialogue, and perhaps redemption," said Chandiramani.

Pyne's "Fisherman" is a tempera on canvas. Geeti Sen, in her monograph on Pyne, has described it as a work that stands out as a masterpiece within his oeuvre. Against a backdrop of twilight darkness, the work captures a bare-chested fisherman on a small wooden boat drifting over blue waters. The composition is bathed in the soft, ethereal glow of a pale golden moon.

Docs race against time, save baby with disease that hits 1 in a million

Malathy.Iyer@timesofindia.com

LIFELONG STRICT DIET

- Bandra couple's child taken to hospital with heart problems
- Tests show triglyceride (fat) levels of 42,000 mg/dL — almost 300 times normal
- She's kept off oral feeds for 16 days, and on IV nutrition to reduce fat in blood. Will require lifelong restriction of dietary fat
- Genetic testing confirms lipoprotein lipase deficiency, a rare metabolic disorder, seen 1 in 10L individuals globally

Mumbai: When doctors at Bai Jerbai Wadia Hospital in Parel here drew blood from a two-and-a-half-month-old baby girl, they froze. Instead of the familiar crimson, the syringe filled with a thick, pinkish liquid.

What began as an evaluation for an enlarged heart quickly turned into a race against time to save a child suffering from familial lipoprotein lipase deficiency (LPLD), a rare inherited disorder affecting fat metabolism that affects roughly one in a million.

The baby, the first child of a Bandra couple after four years of marriage, was referred to the hospital on May 29 for heart problems. "They came with an X-ray that showed an unusually large heart for a two-month-old," said paediatric cardiologist Dr Sumitra Venkatesh. But the unusually light-coloured blood suggested something more serious.

Tests revealed triglyceride levels of 42,000 mg/dL — almost 300 times the normal level. "With such high triglycerides, arteries can get clogged, triggering heart attack or stroke," said Dr Venkatesh. Soon, specialists from paediatric endocrinology, cardiology, intensive care, hepatology, genetics, nutrition and radiology came together to chart a treatment plan.

For the next 16 days, the baby was kept off oral feeds and on IV nutrition to reduce fat circulating in her blood.

Once the triglyceride levels began falling, the focus shifted to designing a safe oral diet. Mother's milk was ruled out because of fat content. Importing a special feed from the US was expensive. So nutritionist worked up a solution based largely on skimmed milk powder, said Dr Venkatesh.

By day 19, her triglyceride level was 242 mg/dL, her blood regained its normal colour and heart function improved.

Although "the child will require lifelong restriction of dietary fat," she is expected to grow and develop normally.

Cessna 152 crash-lands in UP field, trainee pilot injured

Sudeep.Lavania@timesofindia.com

Agra: A 27-year-old trainee pilot was injured after a small, two-seater aircraft belonging to a private aviation company crash-landed in a field in Uttar Pradesh's Kasganj district on Monday afternoon. The pilot, identified as Kainat Kadar Khan, sustained injuries and was rushed to Kasganj District Hospital, where her condition is reported to be stable. The incident occurred around 4 pm on Monday. Khan was flying a Cessna 152 aircraft operated by Chetak Aviation. The flight had taken off from Aligarh but developed a technical snag mid-air, forcing the pilot to attempt an emergency landing.

HC questions Telugu-only SIR forms, asks EC to consider Urdu option

Pinto.Deepak@timesofindia.com

Hyderabad: Telangana high court asked EC to consider providing Urdu enumeration forms for special intensive revision (SIR) of electoral rolls in constituencies where Urdu-speaking population exceeds 20%, questioning why voter forms could not be printed in multiple languages to make the exercise more accessible.

Hearing a petition challenging printing of SIR forms exclusively in Telugu, Justice B Vijaysen Reddy directed the poll panel Monday to file a compliance report on providing Urdu forms by next hearing. "You should have answers and solutions, not say it is not possible. ECI should know democracy is the will of the people," the judge said.

The court questioned why enumeration forms can't be multilingual like Aadhaar cards, bank forms and other govt services.

Senior counsel Avinash Desai, appearing for EC, said printing forms in multiple languages for such a large population would impose a considerable financial burden and create confusion. "Telugu is the official language, so it is used. Also, English forms are used in the Hyderabad metropolitan region. Urdu dummy (sample) forms have been made available for the benefit of Urdu-speaking people," he said.

Senior counsel V Raghunath, appearing for petitioner MA Mujeeb, rejected that argument, alleging financial burden was not real reason behind decision. "The hidden agenda of EC is to target minorities and certain communities and delete their votes. How does carrying a dummy form help the voters?" he asked. "This is nothing but a violation of rights."

He also alleged many booth level officers deployed for SIR were unfamiliar with procedures and faced language barriers while interacting with voters.

The judge asked why BLOs familiar with different languages had not been deployed and directed both petitioner and EC to submit details of the voter roll revision process followed in Bengal, Assam and Bihar before next hearing.

Nihang row: Hry man held for threat to bomb U'khand police stations

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Dehradun: A 26-year-old factory worker from Ambala in Haryana was arrested on Sunday for allegedly posting online threats to bomb all police stations in Uttarakhand. The threats were made in response to a recent clash involving Nihang Sikhs in Karnprayag, SP Dehradun (City) Pramod Kumar said on Monday.

The accused, Jaspreet Singh, uploaded the inflammatory posts on June 21. After the content was widely shared across social media, Dehradun police took suo motu cognisance and registered a case at Kotwali police station on June 22.

"The cyber crime unit tracked Singh down using digital footprints and cyber surveillance. When a police team raided his home in Ambala, Singh was absent. Authorities informed his family about the investigation and instructed them to have him report to the Dehradun police," said Kumar.

Knowing that the police were looking for him, Singh traveled to Dehradun with his lawyer on Sunday. Acting on intelligence, a police team intercepted and arrested him on Saharanpur Road.

"During interrogation, Singh confessed to making the posts. He stated he was upset over the June 16 arrest of four Nihang Sikhs following a clash with locals in Karnprayag, claiming that the state police had not acted fairly," added Kumar. "During the probe, police also found his association with some organisations that were speaking over the whole incident," said SP Pramod Kumar. The police have registered an FIR at the Kotwali police station under multiple sections of BNS.

The Politics, Economics, Fashion & Culture Of Strut

Pride month ends today. Like every year, the exuberantly colourful marches have been happy reminders of how queer people have made societies lighter and freer

If Gandhi perfected the politics of the march, Pride has perfected the politics of strut. With Pride month ending today, we are thinking about why this LGBTQ+ march enthralls us. No other event sees as many strangers asking, "Can I take a picture with you?" It's so Instagrammable, it's got so much glitter, the slogans are served with super playlists, and much dancing.

The pull is that it's the happiest civic lesson you'll attend, reciting how the Constitution guarantees liberty to all, and we are all better off when nobody is made to apologise for who they are. LGBTQ+ history is a story about how societies become lighter and freer.

Economy

Long before corporations painted rainbows on logos, queer entrepreneurs, artists, designers and hoteliers had discovered that authenticity was a market advantage. Neglected districts such as London's Soho, Berlin's Schoneberg and Amsterdam's Reguliersdwarsstraat first became magnets for queer communities because rents were cheap, and then hubs of "creative economy". From Mumbai to Bengaluru, likewise, queer-friendly cafes, bookstores, design studios and cultural festivals often serve as the first signs that a neighbourhood is becoming cosmopolitan enough for everyone else to adore.

The 'pink economy' once meant little more than selling rainbow-themed products. Today, it is increasingly about unlocking human capital — through LGBTQ+ consumers, workers, entrepreneurs, investors and creators

Tim Cook and Peter Thiel to Radhika Piramal and Keshav Suri, there are now many queer people shaping capitalism from the top. But expecting them to agree on queer matters is a mug's game. Thiel famously, and provocatively, complained at the 2016 Republican convention: "We are told that the great debate is about who gets to use which bathroom. This is a distraction from our real problems. Who cares?"

As for the "pink economy", it used to mean niche selling of rainbow-themed products. Now it's adulting. Increasingly, it's about unlocking human capital, with Asia promising to be the next big growth story. As millions more queer consumers, employees, founders, investors and creators become fully visible.

US's openly gay presidential candidate Pete Buttigieg (R) and husband Chasten Buttigieg and their children Penelope and Gus

Politics

To see how liberty itself has been expanded by the gay rights movements, begin with Harvey Milk. In 1977, this fast-talking, camera-loving political hurricane became California's first openly gay elected official. He said, "If a gay can win, it means there is hope that the system can work for all minorities if we fight."

World's first openly gay head of govt? Johanna Siguroardottir, Iceland PM from 2009 to 2013. Her govt legalised same-sex marriage, and that very day she cut her own wedding cake.

US's first openly gay presidential candidate to mount a major campaign? Pete Buttigieg. He's taken heat, and flung it back: "If me being gay was a choice, it was a choice that was made far, far above my pay grade... If you've got a problem with who I am, your quarrel, sir, is with my creator."

India's first openly queer Rajya Sabha member? Supreme Court senior advocate Menaka Guruswamy. As a young law student, she didn't know if it was possible for a gay person to be a successful lawyer. Walking the path she didn't know existed, made her a trailblazer.

Society

Once upon a time, heterosexual couples believed romance belonged behind the curtains. Queer people said nothing doing, and uncoupled physical affection from the private marital bedroom. Disco dance floors to Pride marches, queer people's take was that if society was going to stare at them anyway, they might as well give it a spectacular show! Today, when straight couples kiss deeply at airports, like they're auditioning for a streaming series, they should thank PDA: Pride Did It Already.

Gay people spent generations explaining that "family" isn't always who shares your DNA. It's who remembers your birthday, waters your plants, brings you paracetamol at 2am. They invented the found family that straight people are now chasing as sound strategy.

For centuries, masculinity came with one approved emotion: Stoic. Gay men complicated matters by talking about feelings long before therapists made it fashionable. Also by self-expression in pink shirts, nail polish, pearls, saris, skincare, houseplants. Today, even straight men are encouraged to cry. You're welcome.

Fashion

Wendell Rodricks revived the Goan kunbi sari. His icon status follows from the same philosophy applied to his heritage and sexual orientation: refusal to hide true identity under artificial layers. No sorry, no thank you.

Today, the sari-testosterone combo is a green flag. Major designers feature male models in their sari lookbooks. It's a distinct aesthetic, somewhere between masculine and androgynous.

Blurring gender codes is the USP of queer fashion. Think of Yves Saint Laurent and his Le Smoking tuxedo, which transformed traditional menswear into a power suit for women. Or the deconstructed silhouettes of Rei Kawakubo, which ask, what if clothes stop trying to make women look conventionally attractive?

Two themes hold. One, if creativity doesn't have a gender, neither should clothes. Two, the most creative wardrobes are the ones that ignore the rulebook.

Culture

Chappell Roan is the breakout queer superstar of the now. In earlier decades, artists like Freddie Mercury, George Michael and Elton John came out only after they were established. Gen Z showstoppers are openly queer from the outset. And this Roan song hasn't stopped playing since release in 2023: Won't make my Mama proud, it's gonna cause a scene...Pink Pony Club, I'm gonna keep on dancing at the Pink Pony Club.

Rituparno Ghosh made films like Arekti Premer Golpo, which dismantle ideas of masculinity, femininity and family quietly, forcing Bengali society to confront its straight assumptions. Basically where the world once divided humanity into "men" and "women", now we have more identities than coffee orders. Gay politics has helped humanity accept that categorisation can be a recreational activity.

Remember how David Rose says in Schitt's Creek, in the best of modern queer wit: "I do drink red wine. But I also drink white wine. And I've been known to sample a rosé. And a couple of summers ago I tried a merlot that used to be a chardonnay, which got a bit complicated... I like the wine and not the label."

Ultimately, the queer community's greatest cultural export hasn't been fashion, nightlife or witty one-liners. It's the radical suggestion that people become interesting not by fitting in, but by finally relaxing enough not to. Which, when you think about it, is quite fabulous.

Panel seeks law to regulate coaching centres, rein in 'dummy schools'

The committee was set up in June 2025 under higher education secretary Vineet Joshi to examine students' dependence on coaching, spread of "dummy schools" and fairness of high-stakes entrance tests, source said. The final report is likely to be submitted to govt in a couple of weeks with far-reaching recommendations.

The draft's approach is to regulate the industry on one side and reduce its indispensability on the other — through stronger schools, credible boards, entrance tests aligned more closely with classroom learning, and greater transparency in coaching claims.

TOI learnt that based on the draft report, the committee recommended that govt examine "a comprehensive regulatory framework for coaching centres — including consideration of legislative measures". Citing "the scale and systemic role of the coaching sector", it calls for "uniform standards on transparency, accountability and student protection".

One of its sharpest proposals is to "mandate transparency — full disclosure of faculty qualifications and verified enrolment-versus-success data, and curbs on misleading advertising". According to an official, "The idea is to hit the topper-claim model in which institutes advertise ranks and selections without stating whether candidates were long-term classroom students, test-series users, scholarship students or only associated after results."

The draft also recommends that govt "examine limits on daily coaching hours for school-going students", noting that "a two-to-three-hour cap was specifically proposed." It suggests examining whether intensive coaching should be confined to the post-class XII stage, seeking "jurisdictional clarity between schools and coaching", and using "real-time biometric attendance to address dummy schooling," along with student-wellbeing safeguards.

Nadwi, Ayodhya truce proposer, dies at 72

Mohammed Wajihuddin
@timesofindia.com

Mumbai: Senior Islamic scholar, theologian and preacher Maulana Syed Salman Hussaini Nadwi who, along with spiritual guru and the Art of Living founder Sri Sri Ravi Shankar, tried to get an out-of-court settlement to Ayodhya's Ram Janmabhoomi-Babri Masjid dispute, died of heart attack in Lucknow on Monday. He was 72.

In 2018, Nadwi had grabbed headlines when he met spiritual guru Sri Sri Ravi Shankar in Bangalore and proposed a "formula" to end the Ram Janmabhoomi-Babri Masjid dispute. The dispute had run for decades, culminating in demolition of the mosque by a Hindu mob on December 6,1992 and communal riots in its aftermath.

According to the Sri Sri-Nadwi formula, Muslims would shift the mosque elsewhere in Ayodhya, the Supreme Court would guarantee that no Islamic sites in the country would be allowed to be interfered with, those killed in the post-Babri demolitions riots would be compensated and the government would give 300 acres of land to Muslims to build a mosque and an Islamic university.

"You loved Maulana Salman Nadwi or hated him, but you couldn't ignore him. He was a sincere man who loved his community and his country," said businessman Owais Sareshwala who was present at Nadwi's meeting with Sri Sri on February 8, 2018 in Bangalore.

Next day, the Muslim Personal Law Board at its plenary session in Hyderabad expelled Nadwi from the Board's executive committee, saying that Muslims or their organisations had not mandated Nadwi to mediate on their behalf for an out-of-court settlement to the Ayodhya dispute. The Board maintained that Muslims had decided to accept the apex court's verdict in the dispute.

Soon after his expulsion from the AIMPLB, All India Ittihadul Muslimeen (AIMIM) president and Hyderabad MP Asaduddin Owaisi called for Nadwi's "social boycott" by the community.

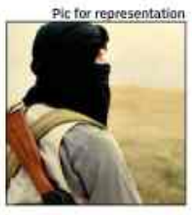
India plans FATF push to put Pakistan back on terror list

Islamabad Was Removed From 'Grey List' In '22

TIMES NEWS NETWORK



Pic for representation

Among the proof New Delhi plans to present before counter-terrorist financing watchdog are videos of Pak army officials attending funerals of terrorists killed in Op Sindoor

New Delhi: India is likely to cite video and other evidence of Pakistan continuing its support to terror outfits, seeking to bring back Islamabad under the 'Grey List' of Financial Action Task Force (FATF) at the Oct meeting of Paris-based anti-money laundering (AML) and counter-terrorist financing (CTF) watchdog.

Pakistan was removed from the 'Grey List' in Oct 2022 after it managed to satisfy members of FATF about implementation of a 34-point action plan that included initiating legislative and operational reforms, including AML/CTF mechanisms, on enhanced monitoring of suspicious transactions and politically exposed persons.

Countries, which are under the 'Grey List', face increased FATF monitoring and are subjected to periodic review "to address strategic deficiencies in their regimes to counter money laundering, terrorist financing, and proliferation financing". Such countries also face difficulties in accessing funds from global financial institutions.

The outcome of any push by India for Pakistan — notorious for being home to jehadi groups behind sensational acts of terrorism in different parts of world — will be interesting to watch, given Islamabad's successful effort to ingratiate itself with Donald Trump administration and cast itself as a peacemaker .

Nonetheless, with Vivek Agarwal, secretary in culture ministry, appointed as FATF vice-president, New Delhi seems to be keen to exert pressure on the watchdog to make Pakistan accountable to continuing proliferation of non-state actors within Pakistani territory and use of their financial system for terror activities.

After India's Operation Sindoor, many senior Pakistan army and intelligence officials were seen in videos, circulating on social media, taking part in funerals of terrorists killed in the operation. These are some evidence, besides many others, where state actors are seen participating in gatherings of terror outfits, that can be produced before the next plenary of FATF to bring back Islamabad under enhanced monitoring, or in the 'Grey List'.

Proscribed terror outfits, such as Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT) promoted front entities which came under global scanner post-9/11, like Jamaat-ud-Dawa, use the cover of "charities" to evade sanctions and continue to operate banking transactions. LeT chief Hafiz Saeed floated a political front, Pakistan Markazi Muslim League, which also fought polls with Saeed's son and other associates as candidates.

DRDO gets more financial powers in def boost

Surendra.Singh
@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: Giving more financial powers to India's elite defence research organisation, PM Narendra Modi govt Monday released a revised framework, 'Delegation of Financial Powers to Defence Research and Development Organisation-2026 (DFP-2026)', ushering in major reform to enhance efficiency, accountability and timely execution of strategic R&D projects.

While releasing DFP-2026, defence minister Rajnath Singh said, "It will facilitate faster production and induction of systems, platforms and technologies emerging from the R&D ecosystem into the defence forces." The new framework will foster stronger collaboration with the industry and academia, reinforcing the vision of Aatmanirbhar Bharat, he said. He said the revised framework will contribute to enhanced self-reliance in defence technologies and strengthen defence preparedness.

DFP-2026 aims to significantly enhance functional empowerment at various levels within the department of defence R&D. The revised framework addresses several critical requirements, including dedicated financial provisions for trial campaigns, tests and evaluation activities, authorisation for sanctioning pre-project R&D initiatives, and clear segregation of financial powers for grants-in-aid pertaining to extra-mural research projects, defence innovation accelerator-centres of excellence, and technology development fund projects under the respective schedules.

Chief of defence staff Gen N S Raja Subramani, defence secretary and DRDO chairman Rajesh Kumar Singh, secretary (defence production) Sanjeev Kumar, and other senior officials were also present on the occasion.

Draft framework for power data sharing released

New Delhi: Govt has proposed a national framework to standardise the sharing of electricity sector data, paving the way for easier access to information on power generation, transmission, distribution, demand and renewable energy, while putting in place safeguards for consumer privacy and critical infrastructure, reports Atul Mathur.

Ministry of power has shared the draft framework with stakeholders for comments. Adoption of framework would be voluntary. Electricity sector data is currently scattered across multiple agencies, follows different formats and definitions, and lacks a standard mechanism for access, making it difficult for policymakers, researchers and industry to use the details effectively.

Framework proposes classifying shareable data into two categories: public and access-controlled. Public datasets, such as installed generation capacity, generation mix, market prices and aggregated statistics, would be available freely. Access-controlled datasets, including feeder-level operational data, detailed load flow studies and de-identified smart meter data, would be available only after registration and KYC verification.

The draft clarifies that sensitive data will remain outside its scope. To protect consumer privacy, framework requires personally identifiable information to be anonymised or de-identified before being shared.

Docs told not to use Themis's anaesthesia drug for spine

New Delhi: A commonly used spinal anaesthesia drug has come under scrutiny after Indian Society of Anaesthesiologists (ISA) advised doctors across India to immediately stop using Themis-manufactured bupivacaine following reports of serious adverse events, reports Anuja Jaiswal.

In an urgent advisory issued on Monday, ISA asked anaesthesiologists nationwide not to use bupivacaine manufactured by Themis for spinal anaesthesia or any other purpose until further notice, saying the precautionary measure had been taken in the interest of patient safety while investigations are underway.

MED UNDER LENS

Bupivacaine is among the most commonly used local anaesthetics for spinal and epidural anaesthesia for surgeries. ISA said the advisory was issued after reports of serious adverse events linked to the drug but didn't disclose the number or nature of the events. Hospitals have been advised to identify and segregate existing stocks, withdraw them from clinical use and switch to alternative approved brands for spinal anaesthesia procedures.

A separate caution notice issued by ISA's Hyderabad Metro City Branch called for immediately suspension of the drug. "... Reports of serious adverse events have been received from multiple hospitals, and until probe ends, we have advised doctors to stop using it," said Dr Sherry Mathews, chief of Hyderabad Metro City Branch of ISA.

Woman learns lover's 'sexual predator', kills him to shield daughter

Avishek.Kumar
@timesofindia.com

Ghaziabad: A woman from Ghaziabad's Tronica City, who realised the man she was seeing for nine months was a sexual predator and wanted to protect her 13-year-old daughter, plotted his murder along with her sister.

On June 23, Kiran (32) and Kashish (21) hit Zakir with a wooden stick and dressed the crime scene to pass it off as suicide. They wrapped a towel around his neck and tied him to the ceiling fan before raising an alarm before neighbours that he died by suicide.

Kiran, police said, was in a live-in relationship with Zakir for the past nine months. Things turned testy when Zakir, a mason, expressed his desire to have sexual relations with Kiran's 13-year-old daughter from her previous marriage. Kiran repeatedly tried to stop him from going anywhere near her daughter, but he rebuffed her.

Around 20 days ago, Kiran called her younger sister and told her about Zakir's sexual advances towards her daughter. "Together, they hatched the murder plan and watched several crime scenes of movies on YouTube. They chose June 23 to commit the crime and escape to their village," the ACP said.

Siddharth Gautam, ACP (Loni), said the case came under their scanner after Zakir's brother, Sameer Khan, filed a complaint

TRIES TO FAKE SUICIDE

Monday, alleging the duo had killed him. Police sent the body for autopsy.

It was the autopsy report that strengthened police's suspicion. The report suggested blunt injury marks on his body and the cause of death as strangulation.

Kiran was called for questioning, but her account did not hold up. "It was only after sustained questioning that she confessed to killing Zakir along with her sister," the ACP said.

"They first hid the stick behind a water tank on the roof. And then, the sisters tied the towel to the fan and hung him from there. They also bent all three blades of the fan so that no one would suspect they had committed the murder," Gautam said.

SpiceJet flight tyre bursts on landing at Bihar airport, halts ops

Patna: A mishap was averted after a SpiceJet flight from Mumbai suffered a tyre burst while landing at Bihar's Darbhanga airport Monday, reports Faryal Rumi. The crew safely brought the aircraft to a halt and around 150 passengers were evacuated without injury.

Airport sources said the incident occurred around 10am, shortly after flight SG-115 touched down. The damaged wheel dragged along the runway for some distance, causing strong vibrations and jolts inside the plane, triggering panic among passengers. But the pilot remained in control and stopped the plane safely. Airport officials and emergency teams reached the spot and passengers were deboarded without incident.

"We were informed there was some issue with the aircraft's tyre after landing. The exact cause is yet to be confirmed, and it is not clear whether the damage was due to a hard landing or any other technical reason," an airport official said.

The official added the aircraft remained grounded while a replacement tyre was arranged from Delhi.

The incident briefly disrupted flight operations, as the SpiceJet aircraft remained stranded on the apron.

Foreign income, overseas assets? Don't miss these ITR disclosures

Preeti.Kulkarni@timesofindia.com

Non-disclosure or under-reporting of foreign income has emerged as a key pain point for many Indian taxpayers in recent years. The income tax (I-T) department's data-driven scrutiny and information exchange with foreign tax authorities have triggered tax notices for inadequate or flawed foreign income disclosures in recent years. To be sure, since Budget 2024, non-disclosure of foreign assets (other than immovable properties) up to Rs 20 lakh does not invite penalties or prosecution.

Taxpayers with financial footprints overseas need to exercise caution when filing returns. Yet, many end up not disclosing or under-reporting foreign income and assets. "This includes overseas brokerage accounts and investments held through them. Many taxpayers overlook the need to disclose foreign shares, RSUs (Restricted Stock Units), ESOPs (Employee Stock Options), and ESPP (Employee Stock Purchase Plan) holdings, often assuming that such assets are not reportable in India. As tax authorities increasingly focus on foreign asset reporting, ensuring complete and accurate disclosure of these holdings has become a critical area of compliance for taxpayers qualifying as ROR (resident and ordinarily resident)," says Amarpal Chadha, tax partner, EY India.

But many taxpayers continue to take a less-than-meticulous approach while disclosing such financial transactions. "The most noticeable trend this year is the widening gap between what taxpayers believe the I-T department knows and the information that is actually available to the tax authorities through global information sharing mechanisms. Several taxpayers continue to wrongly assume that foreign assets remain outside the tax radar unless funds are transferred to India," says Mayank Mohanka, founder, TaxAaram.com. Income tax authorities have access to a wider pool of overseas financial information than most taxpayers realise. "Consequently, foreign bank accounts, investment portfolios, retirement accounts and overseas income streams are becoming far more visible than before," he adds.

Start With The Basics

Taxpayers who have returned to India should first ascertain their tax residency status — ordinarily resident (ROR), resident but not ordinarily resident (RNOR), or non-resident (NR). "A resident individual will generally qualify as RNOR if he has been a non-resident in nine out of the 10 preceding financial years, or has stayed in India for 729 days or less during the seven preceding financial years. Once these conditions are no longer satisfied, the individual becomes an ROR," explains Mohanka.

This distinction is crucial because the obligation to disclose foreign assets in Schedule FA generally applies only to ordinarily resident taxpayers.

Disclose Income From Overseas

Professionals who provide services to overseas firms while living in India and have an ordinary resident status also need to make the requisite disclosures of such foreign income in their ITR.

You need to bear in mind two key schedules — TR (tax relief) and FSI (foreign source income) in ITR. "Schedule TR relates to claiming foreign tax credit. Here you have to report the amount of tax paid outside India, and the tax credit available in India, so that the same income is not taxed twice," explains chartered accountant Ashish Karundia, founder, Ashish Karundia & Co. Schedule FSI is meant to capture all the income earned outside India.

"You need to report the details of the foreign income, the corresponding article of the DTAA (Double Taxation Avoidance Agreement), the tax paid on income earned outside India, the tax payable on such income in India, and the tax relief available. Schedule FA goes a step further — it requires details of the foreign assets you hold, along with the income earned from outside India," he explains. Do make a note of one crucial difference between schedules FSI, TR and FA — the reporting period.

"Schedule FA is always based on the calendar year (Jan to Dec), whereas Schedules FSI and TR follow the normal financial year (April to March). This is where many taxpayers make mistakes. They report the financial year in both schedules, leading to mismatches," says Karundia.

Take Note Of Disclosures Needed

Forms ITR-2 and ITR-3 require detailed disclosures, which leaves scope for errors to creep in. "The most commonly missed disclosure is the non-filing of information in Schedule FA. Taxpayers often overlook foreign bank accounts, payroll accounts maintained overseas, retirement plans such as the US' 401(k), individual retirement accounts (IRAs), superannuation funds, and pension accounts, believing that disclosure is required only when money is withdrawn," says Karundia.

Similarly, holdings acquired through RSUs, ESOPs, and ESPPs are frequently overlooked, especially when shares have not yet been sold. "Taxpayers assume that since tax has been paid on receipt, there is no need to report until they are sold," he adds. Do not assume that disclosures are required only when shares are sold, or funds are remitted to India.

Understand DTAA, Form 67

Double tax avoidance agreements between two countries are meant to ensure that a taxpayer does not have to pay tax on the same income twice. "Treaties may allow either an exemption, a lower tax rate, or a credit for taxes already paid overseas. DTAA remain relevant as long as the individual has cross-border income that is taxable in more than one country. In practice, the importance of DTAA increases once the individual becomes an ROR in India and their foreign income becomes taxable in India," explains Chadha. Taxpayers seeking to claim credit for taxes paid overseas must furnish Form 67 along with other supporting documents.

Focus On Documentation

Foolproof documentation is your defence against any I-T queries that might arise. These include overseas bank account statements, brokerage/investment account statements, and employer-issued payslips. "It is important to maintain documents pertaining to RSU and ESOP grants, vesting and exercise records, stock purchase plan statements, pension account statements and documents relating to the acquisition or disposal of foreign assets," says Chadha. Mohanka recommends maintaining a paper trail of seven years to respond to any tax notices.

Be Mindful Of Penalties

Not adhering to the rules and failing to make disclosures can lead to severe consequences, including the invocation of the Black Money Act.

"This can potentially lead to substantial tax demands, a penalty of Rs 10 lakh and, in serious cases, prosecution," sums up Karundia.

Common Errors In ITR Filing

1
Not monitoring the shift from RNOR to ROR status
ITR
2
Not disclosing foreign asset details in Schedule FA
3
Assuming foreign assets need disclosure only when
• Shares are sold
• Money is remitted to India
• Income is earned
4
Failure to disclose
• Overseas bank accounts
• Payroll accounts
• Retirement accounts (401(k), IRA, pension, superannuation)
• RSUs/ESOPs/ESPPs
• Jointly-held foreign accounts
5

EPFO 3.0: Can a digital upgrade fix PF delays?

Sanket.Dhanorkar@timesofindia.com

For millions of Employees Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) subscribers, accessing provident fund (PF) services has long meant delays, technical glitches and paperwork. EPFO 3.0 promises a faster, paperless and more user-friendly digital platform. But can a technology upgrade fix the deep-rooted problems of an organisation built on decades-old processes?

EPFO has struggled to modernise a system originally designed for a paper-driven era, with member data spread across regional offices, leading to delays and errors. EPFO 3.0 aims to centralise records through the Centralised IT Enabled System (CITES), creating a unified platform for contributions, claims, transfers and pension accounts.

The aim is to make EPFO function more like a modern banking platform, enabling anywhere access, reducing dependence on regional offices and improving grievance redress. A revamped Electronic Challan-cum-Return system is also expected to simplify employer compliance and reduce reporting errors.

Faster Access To PF Money

The most visible change under EPFO 3.0 is the proposed facility allowing members to withdraw PF money instantly through UPI apps and UPI-enabled ATMs. Integrated with the National Payments Corporation of India network, the feature requires KYC-compliant accounts linked to Aadhaar, PAN and an active Universal Account Number (UAN). However, experts say instant withdrawals address only one part of the problem, as verification for larger claims remains the bigger challenge.

EPFO has already introduced auto-settlement of claims up to Rs 5 lakh for eligible accounts, enabling faster payouts without extensive manual intervention. However, full withdrawals above this limit will continue to require detailed checks, employer validation and possible corrections.

EPFO 3.0 also simplifies withdrawal rules by merging multiple categories into three broad groups — essential needs, housing needs and special circumstances. The minimum service requirement for partial withdrawals has been standardised at 12 months.

Members may also withdraw up to 75% of their EPF balance, depending on the purpose, while retaining a portion of the corpus for retirement security.

However, easier access could have tax implications, especially for those withdrawing before completing five years of service.

Fixing Record Mismatches

Incorrect member data has long been a key reason for claim rejections. EPFO 3.0 aims to let members update records digitally through OTP-based verification, reducing reliance on employers. Some changes will still require employer approval or additional verification.

EPFO 3.0 represents a significant attempt to modernise India's largest social security system. For over 30 crore subscribers, faster claims, fewer office visits and improved transparency could be a major improvement.

However, technology alone cannot resolve years of legacy issues. Cleaning old data, fixing KYC mismatches and overhauling processes will take time. EPFO is moving in the right direction, but the transition will be gradual.

What EPFO 3.0 must solve

- Outdated technology architecture
  Data fragmentation across regional PF offices leads to slow reconciliation of contributions, transfers and claims.
- Lack of UAN level accounting
  Withdrawals/transfers are done on different member IDs even when mapped under a single UAN.
- Slow, inconsistent claim settlement
  Manual interventions required despite digital submission.
- Employer-dependent processes
  Many corrections still require employer approval, a digital signature, clarification letters, or physical documents.
- Offline processes
  Physical visits to regional PF offices are required in certain cases, such as death claims, old PF accounts (pre-UAN era) withdrawal/transfer.
- Employer compliance challenges
  Delayed or missing deposits, incorrect reporting, and non-cooperation by ex-employers.
- Data quality issues
  Mismatch or gap in records leads to withdrawal rejections.
- EPS-related complexities
  Incorrect EPS deductions, wrong EPS date of joining/date of exit, and previous service clarification issues frequently create complications.
- Grievance redress
  Delayed resolution, closure without complete resolution (reasons often not specified), follow-ups required.

ASK THE EXPERTS

How will my insurance provider treat my pre-existing disease that's clearly marked as such ('PED') in the document? —J Singh

If your insurer has marked a condition as a pre-existing disease in the policy document, it simply means the ailment existed before the policy was issued and will be covered after a defined waiting period. Under the revised Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (IRDAI) norms, a condition is generally treated as pre-existing if it was diagnosed, treated or medically advised within 36 months prior to policy issuance. The positive shift is that regulations have become more consumer-friendly over time. The standard waiting period for PEDs has now been reduced from four to three years. During this period, claims related to that specific condition may not be admissible, but the policy continues to provide protection against unrelated illnesses and medical emergencies from day one, subject to policy terms.

In 2025, I sold a residential property, which was purchased in 2008 in the joint names of my wife and I. My wife did not contribute financially to it. Can both of us claim long-term capital gains tax benefits. —Har Narayan Jaju

Under the Income Tax Act, long-term capital gains are taxable in the hands of the person who bore the cost of acquisition. Since you alone funded the purchase of the property, the capital gains from its sale would be taxable entirely in your hands, even though it was held jointly with your wife. Your wife cannot claim a separate exemption or benefits on this transaction as she did not contribute financially to the acquisition. The Income Tax Act follows the principle of 'real ownership' rather than nominal ownership for capital gains taxation. Therefore, you alone can claim available long-term capital gains tax benefits, such as exemption under Section 54 (by investing in a residential property) or Section 54EC (by investing in specified bonds), provided you fulfil the prescribed conditions. For taxation purposes, you have to maintain clear records establishing that you were the sole contributor to the property's purchase.

Union govt seeks uniform cinema rules, to focus on theatre expansion

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Central govt on Monday set up a high-level study group, led by Prasar Bharati chairperson Prasoon Joshi to chart a growth roadmap for Indian cinema and also sent model cinema regulations to states for adoption, in a twin push aimed at making the film industry more globally competitive and easing the expansion of theatres, particularly in small towns and rural areas.

The decisions were made at a review meeting Information and Broadcasting minister Ashwini Vaishnaw held with senior ministry officials. The move comes amid growing recognition that while Indian films have expanded their global footprint, the sector continues to face gaps in institutional finance, uneven theatre infrastructure and fragmented state-level permissions and needs to adapt faster to new technologies such as artificial intelligence and virtual production.

Study Group, which will include industry experts and technology partners, will examine opportunities and challenges before Indian cinema and recommend measures to strengthen production, distribution and global competitiveness. It will study ways to help filmmakers access new funding options, address difficulties in raising money, and suggest how emerging technologies can be integrated into filmmaking.

The model regulations, prepared after consultations with stakeholders, are intended to simplify and standardise approvals for cinemas and theatres. TNN

Army denies reports of PLA incursions in Arunachal

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Indian Army Monday denied reports of Chinese incursions in Arunachal Pradesh.

Days ago, Nah tribal community in Arunachal had raised concerns over alleged Chinese incursions along LAC in Upper Subansiri district, claiming that the People's Liberation Army (PLA) has occupied large parts of their traditional grazing, hunting and agricultural areas over the past six years.

Nah Welfare Society (NWS) had also submitted a memorandum to the Subansiri deputy commissioner alleging that the PLA's occupation.

"Our ancestral lands which were our hunting areas where we freely roamed and collected forest products few years back and our cattle grazing areas are now under the occupation of the Chinese PLA," NWS President Keru Chader said.

NWS also alleged that Chinese activity had intensified over the past 10 to 15 years "with an intention to occupy as much land as possible".

The tribe also claimed Oying, Paniar, Marpan, Potrang and Tindingtang — all under traditional Nah control until 2020 — have gradually come under Chinese occupation. Some of these sites are regarded as pilgrimage destinations by the community, the memorandum said.

Issuing a strong rebuttal to reports carrying the details of the NWS memorandum, the Indian Army on Monday said, "We have seen some media reports alleging recent encroachment by Chinese PLA and setting up of camps in Arunachal Pradesh. These reports are incorrect and without any basis."

Participation signals India still a friend of Iran

Participation by govt of India in the funeral builds upon Modi's message to Pezeshkian in the middle of the West Asia conflict that India remains a friend of Iran. Khamenei's successor Mojtaba Khamenei was reported to have thanked Modi for his Eid al-Adha greetings earlier and expressed confidence that relations between India and Iran will continue to deepen.

"Prime Minister Narendra Modi, I have received Your Excellency's message of congratulations on the occasion of the blessed Eid al-Adha. While expressing my sincere appreciation and extending my reciprocal congratulations, I am confident that the historic friendship between our two countries, founded on mutual respect and shared interests, will continue to be further strengthened and expanded through the efforts of our two govts," said Mojtaba, according to ANI.

Malik tasked 4 men with the abduction and killing: SIA

Three of Malik's co-accused died before the case could go to trial.

The chargesheet, filed in the special additional sessions judge's court in Srinagar that hears cases filed by NIA and those under TADA and the Prevention of Terrorism Act, states that Malik assigned Khurshid Ahmad Chalkoo, Abdul Hamid Sheikh, Mohammad Yousuf Sofi (alias Idrees), and Ghulam Mohammad Taploo to carry out the abduction and killing.

Sarla, from south Kashmir's Anantnag district, was a staff nurse in the neonatology ward of Sher-i-Kashmir Institute of Medical Sciences and was among the few Kashmiri Pandits who chose to remain in the Valley despite terrorists unleashing violence targeting the community. She was abducted from the govt-run college's Habba Khatoon Hostel on April 18, 1990 by Yasin Malik's outfit.

The chargesheet mentions how Sarla was taken to the Illahibagh-Lal Bazar area, where she was allegedly tortured repeatedly before being shot dead. Her mutilated, bullet-riddled body was found the next day at Omer Colony Malabagh in downtown Srinagar along with a note accusing her of being a "mukhbir" or informer for the security forces.

The investigation established that the "informer" accusation was a "fabricated pretext to justify a premeditated assassination", SIA said, describing the chargesheet as "a tribute to the memory of a victim who was denied justice for decades, a reaffirmation of the rule of law and a message of hope to countless victims of terrorism and their families".

While Malik is in judicial custody in Delhi's Tihar Jail in another terror case, Chalkoo, who allegedly pulled the trigger, is absconding. He is suspected to have fled to Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (POK). Proclamation proceedings have been initiated against him, the State Investigation Agency (SIA) said.

Seychelles is vital to 'Vision Mahasagar'

On Monday, Modi on X spoke of "gifting a fast patrol vessel to govt of Seychelles, strengthening maritime security cooperation, enhancing India's role as a net security provider in the IOR and promoting Indian defence manufacturing capabilities".

The PM's four-day visit has not only strengthened defence cooperation with Seychelles but also expanded India's presence in Indian Ocean Region (IOR) as a net security provider.

Seychelles is vital to India's 'Vision Mahasagar' as it secures sea lines of communication in the western Indian Ocean, counters expanding geopolitical competition, and anchors maritime domain awareness against piracy and illegal fishing.

During Seychelles' 50th Independence Day celebrations, personnel from the Assam Regiment and a naval band joined the grand parade and two Indian Navy ships — stealth frigate INS Tarkash and survey vessel INS Ikshak — participated in the event. As they marched, the Army contingent performed the Assam regiment's regimental song, 'Badlu Ram Ka Badan'.

Posting the images of the contingents on X, Modi said, "Honoured to participate in the National Day celebrations of Seychelles. India is proud to stand alongside Seychelles as a trusted friend and partner in its development journey."

MEA: We take no cognisance of such events

We really take no cognisance of these events. They really don't hold much value, as far as we are concerned," Misri said.

Indian officials have maintained — since a report about "track II" dialogue first appeared on a news channel a few months ago — that the govt has nothing to do with the talks in which retired officials participate in private capacities.

Indian officials stopped participating in such events organised by an international think tank after the Pahalgam terrorist attack last year in April.

15 displaced families enter Imphal village after 3 years

Donald Sairem | TNN

Imphal: Displaced residents from 15 households of Dolaithabi village in Imphal East district stepped into their native village for the first time in more than three years on Monday, as Manipur govt began their resettlement process.

The families, accompanied by officials from the district administration and security personnel, inspected their homes. The houses, which were either burnt during the conflict or destroyed by weather due to prolonged abandonment, were found to be no longer inhabitable.

The visit marked the beginning of efforts to facilitate the return of residents who had remained displaced for over three years. Officials assessed the condition of the houses and reviewed arrangements required to support the rehabilitation of the returning families.

The displaced families have been living in relief camps at Sawombung and Sajiwa in Imphal East district since the outbreak of the conflict between the Meitei and Kuki-Zo communities in May 2023. They had repeatedly appealed to the govt to fulfil its commitment to facilitate their safe return and rehabilitation.

Dolaithabi, a Meitei village in the periphery of Imphal East, has 37 households. While all 37 households have received financial assistance to rebuild their homes in instalment, officials said resettlement will begin first for the 15 households, along with deployment of security forces.

On Sunday, dozens of Kuki people took out a rally near the Dolaithabi village against the resettlement bid.

Security forces have been deployed to ensure the safety of the returning villagers and to assess the security situation ahead of permanent resettlement.

Rare for all regions of India to record big rain deficit

Central India has a massive rainfall deficit of 54% so far this month, followed by east & northeast at 41%, northwest at 30% and south 28%. It's rare for all four regions of the country to record such big rain shortfalls, which could be pointing to El Niño already beginning to impact India's monsoon.

As per an update released last week by US agency International Research Institute for Climate and Society, the El Niño was already close to reaching moderate strength amid rapid warming in the equatorial Pacific. The El Niño is projected to keep strengthening over the next few months. This is significant because a stronger event increases the chances of impact on India's monsoon.

El Niño is a periodic warming of surface waters in the east and central Pacific, with concurrent changes in wind flows that affect weather across the globe.

After a weak onset over Kerala on June 4, monsoon has failed to pick up so far. During June, daily rainfall across the country has exceeded normal on just a single day so far.

HC: Can't deny maintenance citing help from wife's parents

Rajesh Kumar Pandey | TNN

Prayagraj: Observing that financial support extended by a woman's parents during times of distress does not absolve the husband's statutory obligation to maintain her, the Allahabad high court allowed a criminal revision petition filed by a wife and her two minor children against a Dec 2023 order of a Bulandshahr family court.

The high court restored the wife's right to maintenance, enhanced the maintenance awarded to the children, and held that parental assistance cannot be treated as a substitute for the husband's legal duty under Section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC).

The family court had rejected the woman's claim for maintenance while awarding Rs 3,000 per month each to the couple's two minor children.

Allowing the revision petition filed by Reenu and her two children, Justice Garima Prashad held that the income of the wife's parents cannot be treated as her income.

Bait attached to an explosive blows off pet dog's head

Vijay.Singh@timesofindia.com

Navi Mumbai: In a shocking case of animal cruelty, a pet dog's head was completely blown off in Neral after he went towards a food bait that was attached to an illegal explosive.

Bombay High Court-appointed honorary animal welfare officer, Soorraj Saha, helped lodge an FIR in the case and intimated the state forest department about the alleged use of the explosive bait to trap and kill leopards for their claws and skin and also wild boars.

The FIR lodged against unknown persons at Neral police station was filed under Section 5 of the Explosive Substances Act, 1908, and Section 325 of BNS for the killing of an animal.

Saha told TOI: "This horrific incident occurred on June 26 at Asalpada in Karjat taluka, in the foothills of Matheran. A family had come here to a farm resort along with their pet dog, Togo. The poor dog, out of curiosity, went towards a bushy area as he sniffed some sort of food placed there. It was a deadly bait attached to a powerful explosive."

While Neral police are further inquiring into this matter in order to identify the poachers, social activists and residents alleged that several types of explosives are regularly smuggled into Karjat to either break rocks and steal earth or to kill wild animals.

Last year, environmentalist B N Kumar of NatConnect Foundation complained to the chief minister's office about explosions near the riverside at Shingdol, Dhotre villages in Karjat, leading to damage to houses nearby.

All govt exams to go online from next year, says Maha govt

Mumbai: From next year, all exams conducted by the state govt will be held online, school education minister Dada Bhuse announced in the Maharashtra assembly on Monday. A committee has been formed under state chief secretary Rajesh Agarwal to create the necessary infrastructure to conduct online examinations. Bhuse added that all those found guilty in the TET paper leak case will be tried under the Maharashtra Control of Organised Crime Act (MCOCA) after making appropriate changes in the law.

Brijkishor Zanwar, public relations officer for the school education department, said "the committee has been formed to look into how all exams like the TET conducted by various departments and ministries can be conducted online."

The TET examination, scheduled for Sunday, was postponed on Saturday, after the alleged paper leak surfaced.

Speaking on the paper leak, BJP MLA Sudhir Mungantiwar in the assembly asked why the question papers were printed in Agra when currency notes are printed in Nashik, demanding that all question papers be printed within Maharashtra. He alleged that outsiders were involved and no Maharashtrians were part of the leak. TNN

Crime to death sentence in 60 days for child's rape-murder

Pune: Two months after a three-year-old girl was raped and murdered at Nasrapur in Maharashtra's Pune district, a fast-track court sentenced Monday 65-year-old contract worker Bhimrao Kamble to death after a speedy conviction based on the "last-seen" theory and "an unbroken chain" of circumstantial evidence.

"Now, go to the gallows," special judge S R Salunkhe said, ruling that the case belonged to the rarest-of-rare category given its "manner, motive and magnitude". The court noted that Kamble, a father of married daughters and a son, had a history of sexual crimes and that the May 1 rape-murder for which he had been convicted was "a cold-blooded, unprovoked and premeditated act".

Investigators found out that Kamble wooed the child to a nearby cowshed on the pretext of showing her a newborn calf when she was playing outside her grandmother's home on the day of the crime. He then raped and killed her, hiding the body in the cowshed.

Judge Salunkhe said the nature of the crime "shook the judicial and social conscience", necessitating the strongest possible deterrent. TNN

Maha govt to do school inspection drive to enforce Marathi: Minister

Priyanka.Kakodkar
@timesofindia.com

Mumbai: Education minister Dada Bhuse announced in the assembly on Monday that the government would undertake a special inspection drive to enforce teaching of Marathi in all boards in the state from Standards I to 10. This includes boards like IB and IGCSE. "If any violations are found during the inspections, strict action will be taken against the schools and officials concerned," Bhuse said. He said that schools are expected to conduct examinations in each standard. He urged MLAs to inform the state about violations to the mandatory Marathi language rule in their constituencies.

The issue was raised by BJP MLA Atul Bhatkalkar, who flagged concerns over schools allegedly not implementing the teaching of Marathi. Sena (UBT) MLA Varun Sardesai alleged that some IB schools had declared they would not teach Marathi. "How many schools have been sent notices by the government?" he asked.

Sena (UBT) MLA Sunil Prabhu claimed several schools taught Marathi but did not conduct exams in the subject.

Bhuse said, "The state made it mandatory to teach Marathi in schools from Standards 1 to 10 since 2020. The first violation invites a notice. After that, the penalty is a Rs 1 lakh fine." In April 2026, the government had introduced a new rule stating that the licence of schools which violate the rule will also be revoked.

Bhuse spoke about the inclusion of the history of Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj in textbooks, stating that the coverage had been expanded.

21st-floor flat gutted in NCR, family escapes

Adviya.Bahl@timesofindia.com

Noida: A suspected short circuit in an air-conditioner triggered yet another highrise fire in NCR on Monday morning, gutting a 21st-floor flat in the city and forcing residents to flee through smoke-filled corridors.

The fire at Aranya society in Sector 119 came weeks after the devastating Hauz Rani blaze in Delhi that killed 23 people, amid a punishing heatwave that pushed "feels-like" temperatures beyond 50°C across NCR for two straight days. With ACs running for hours at a stretch in many homes, a series of recent fires linked to cooling units has raised alarm over electrical overloads and poor emergency preparedness. Monday's blaze broke out around 8.50am in flat 2105, owned by Suresh Kumar Mahajan (61), after a blast in the outdoor AC unit caused by a short circuit.

Within minutes, flames tore through one of the bedrooms and climbed along the building facade, while thick black smoke barrelled upwards into nearby flats. Mahajan said his family was asleep when the fire began. It was his elder daughter, a schoolteacher, who first sensed danger: "She woke up to smoke filling the room and shouted for all of us. Had she not, we may not have made it out," Mahajan told TOI.

The family rushed out moments before the room was engulfed. Six fire tenders reached the spot and managed to contain the flames before they spread horizontally to adjoining flats. But smoke seeped into at least four nearby units, triggering panic among residents on upper floors. Many ran down the stairwell as the society's maintenance team began an evacuation.

Ayodhya police question Champat Rai for two hours

Trust's Meeting To Take Call On His Resignation Advanced To July 6

Pathikrit Chakraborty & Shalabh | TNN

This is the first time Champat Rai's statement has been recorded since he stepped down as the trust's general secretary on June 27 and the police registered an FIR in the alleged donation theft case

Lucknow: The investigation into the alleged embezzlement of Ram Temple donations gathered pace on Monday as the Ayodhya Police recorded the statement of Champat Rai, the Shri Ram Janmabhoomi Teerth Kshetra Trust general secretary who has now resigned.

Police officials confirmed the development, saying statements of several Trust functionaries and other persons associated with the temple's donation management system were being recorded to piece together the sequence of events and verify the standard operating procedures followed in handling the offerings.

According to sources familiar with the investigation, a police team led by a deputy superintendent of police (DySP)-rank officer questioned Rai for more than two hours. Investigators reportedly sought detailed information on the entire donation management process — from the receipt of cash and valuables offered by devotees, their counting and safe custody, to their eventual deposit in designated bank accounts. Sources said the questioning was aimed at understanding the institutional mechanism governing temple donations, identifying the responsibilities of various officials at different stages of the process, and examining whether any procedural lapses may have created opportunities for the alleged embezzlement.

This is the first time Rai's statement has been recorded since he stepped down as the trust's general secretary on June 27 and the police registered an FIR in the alleged donation theft case. Investigators are corroborating his statement with financial records, bank documents, CCTV footage, electronic evidence and other material collected during the course of the investigation. Anil Mishra, a member of the trust, also resigned along with Rai.

The trust is expected to take a decision on their resignation in its next meeting. The meeting which was originally scheduled to be held on July 14 has been advanced to July 6.

Sources said the police are expected to record the statement of Mishra next, while statements of several other individuals associated with the trust have already been taken or are currently being recorded. The exercise forms part of the investigators' effort to reconstruct the movement of donations and establish accountability at every stage of the handling process.

The probe has gathered momentum over the past few days, with investigators examining financial transactions, documentary evidence and witness testimonies to determine the alleged conspiracy and trace the movement of funds linked to the case.

Who is Champat Rai?

Champat Rai (79), a former chemistry teacher at ASM Degree College in Bijnor district, was actively involved with the Ram temple movement as well as the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS). He resigned from academics after spending one and half years in various jails during the Ram Temple agitation and went on to dedicate his time to the Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP). He climbed the ranks in the VHP over the years and is now its vice-president. When the central govt formed the trust according to the Supreme Court's order, Rai was made its general secy in 2020. Although the trust is headed by Mahant Nritya Gopal Das of Maniram Chhavni, it's Rai who has been calling the shots at the temple right since its construction started on Aug 5, 2020.

River bank erosion brings down bridge, cuts rail link to Assam's easternmost stn

Railway bridge over Simen River partially collapses after being affected by severe riverbank erosion, in Assam, Monday

Guwahati: Rail services to Murkongselek, Assam's easternmost railway station on the north bank of the Brahmaputra and a key link to Arunachal Pradesh, were suspended indefinitely from Monday after a portion of the railway bridge over the Simen River in Dhemaji district collapsed due to massive riverbank erosion on Sunday.

The Northeast Frontier Railway (NFR) said train operations on the nearly 60-km Silapathar–Murkongselek section will remain suspended until further notice. Railway officials said restoring connectivity is likely to take several weeks as a long-term solution requires extending the bridge to withstand the Simen River's shifting course and erosion during the ongoing floods.

A team of expert railway engineers from Lucknow has been deputed to inspect the damaged bridge and suggest restoration measures. NF Railway General Manager Chetan Kumar Srivastava, along with other senior officials, visited the site on Monday.

NF Railway chief public relations officer KK Sharma said, "The major issue is that slowly the river is changing its path. In this incident, the river bank on the right side got eroded as the river is coming towards that side. Under such circumstances, it has been decided to increase the length of the bridge to rebuild it." Sharma said the extent of damage has forced a redesign with a longer span. "It will take some time to find a permanent solution," Sharma added. Until the bridge is rebuilt, trains on the route will terminate at Silapathar. "Our expert team from Lucknow will arrive in Assam on Tuesday. Following discussions with the team, the design will be finalized," Sharma added.

Sharma had said on Sunday, "This bridge, constructed in 1965, and later converted to broad gauge, was in good and safe condition, but due to washing away of a large portion of the river bank during the heavy rains, one of its piers became unstable."

The disruption has hit residents in eastern Assam, where trains are a more affordable option than buses and private vehicles for travel to destinations including Guwahati. Three passenger trains operated daily on the route, providing connectivity to communities in the region and neighbouring Arunachal Pradesh.

Guwahati: Widespread flooding triggered by incessant monsoon rains has affected nearly 68,000 people across Assam and Arunachal Pradesh in the past 24 hours, disrupting connectivity, damaging infrastructure, and inundating croplands.

As rescue and relief operations intensified across the two northeastern states, Union home minister Amit Shah on Monday reviewed the situation through telephonic conversations with chief minister Himanta Biswa Sarma and Pema Khandu, assuring both of full support from the Centre.

According to the Assam State Disaster Management Authority (ASDMA), around 46,000 people across seven districts remained affected by floods till Monday evening. Dhemaji district, bordering Arunachal Pradesh, bore the brunt with nearly 41,000 people impacted. In neighbouring Arunachal Pradesh, the State Disaster Management Department reported that more than 22,000 people were affected by rain and floods across three districts, including nearly 20,000 in Siang alone.

In a successful rescue operation on Monday, all five people stranded on an island in the Sisiri river in the Dambuk area of Lower Dibang Valley district were safely rescued by a joint team comprising the Indian Air Force, the NDRF, and local rescuers. The department said one person was rescued by the NDRF, two by local rescuers, and two by an IAF helicopter.

Three die as rain batters Chhattisgarh

Times News Network

Raipur: Heavy rain and lightning claimed three lives in separate incidents across Chhattisgarh on Sunday, with two sisters crushed under a mud wall that fell over in Bemetara and an 18-year-old youth killed by lightning in Sukma.

In Bemetara district, the wall of an abandoned mud house collapsed on Vanshika Kosle, 12, and her sister Radhika Kosle, 9, in Rauarpur village. Police said the family shifted to a new house, but the old mud structure had not been demolished. Weakened by continuous overnight rain, one of its walls suddenly gave way while the girls were playing in the courtyard, burying them under the debris.

The IMD forecast moderate to heavy rainfall accompanied by thunderstorms and lightning across several parts of Chhattisgarh over the coming days.

Ram temple donation theft accused remanded in judicial custody

Lucknow: A special court in Ayodhya on Monday remanded all the eight accused arrested in the alleged Ram Temple donation theft case to 14 days of judicial custody after the investigating agency chose not to seek their custodial remand.

The development came as the police continued to gather documentary, financial and witness evidence.

The accused were produced before Special Judge Rajat Verma of Special Court No. 1 (Prevention of Corruption Act) through video conferencing. The hearing lasted nearly 30 minutes, following which the court extended their judicial custody till July 13. The accused will remain in the Ayodhya district jail till the next date of hearing. The accused include Ramshankar Yadav alias Tinnu Yadav, Anukalp Mishra, Avinash Shukla, Karunesh Pandey, Manish Yadav, Lavkush Mishra, Ramashankar Mishra and Subhash Srivastava.

Before the hearing, the accused were brought to the prison's video conferencing unit around 30 minutes before the court proceedings commenced. Ayodhya circle officer Ashutosh Tiwari, who is also the investigating officer in the case, was present during the proceedings.

As part of the ongoing investigation, the police also produced a witness before the court. However, Tiwari declined to comment on the status of the investigation while leaving the court premises.

Special public prosecutor Umesh Dubey said the accused were in judicial custody from June 26 to June 29. Since the investigating agency did not move an application seeking police custody, the court ordered that the accused be sent back to judicial custody for another 14 days. Meanwhile, family members of some of the accused, including Ravi Yadav, son of Tinnu Yadav, and Shani Yadav, brother of accused Manish Yadav, visited the Ayodhya district jail during the day.

Investigators are examining bank records, documentary evidence, digital material and witness statements to trace the alleged diversion of devotees' offerings and establish the roles of each accused.

SC declines urgent hearing on petition for CBI-led probe

Times News Network

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Monday refused urgent hearing on a PIL by two advocates seeking investigation by CBI-led multi-discipline probe agencies into the alleged embezzlement of Ayodhya Ram Mandir funds, created from donations of devotees for religious and charitable purposes.

RAM TEMPLE DONATION FRAUD

Petitioners – Delhi-based advocates Ajay Kumar Rai and Dinesh Yadav – said the allegations are serious and require urgent directives from court for a multi-discipline investigation to identify the culprits. However, a bench of Justices M M Sundresh and Sheel Nagu said, "Heavens are not going to fall if the petition is heard after the court resumes normal business on July 12 after the end of partial working days."

"What is the urgency?" the bench asked when Rai said the probe being conducted by UP Police SIT does not inspire confidence. Shortly after urgent hearing on Rai's petition was denied, another advocate, N K Goswami, told the bench that he has also filed a PIL seeking a probe into temple fund embezzlement case and pleaded that SC should in the interim direct preservation of all electronic evidence.

Ram Mandir donation row reaches K'taka

The donation box theft case linked to Ram Mandir has taken a Karnataka turn after Deepak, former gram panchayat president of Chondori village in Bidar's Aurad taluk, filed a complaint with Uttar Pradesh SIT. In a complaint addressed to SIT chief Vijay Vishwas Pant, Deepak alleged that BJP MLA Prabhu Chauhan and RSS functionary Gopal collected donations in the name of Ram Mandir and received Rs 5 lakh each from contractors. He claimed that no documentation or receipts were issued for the donations. Deepak alleged the money collected was invested in real estate. When TOI tried to contact Aurad BJP MLA Prabhu Chauhan, he didn't answer call

The Akal Takht maintains that the amendments were passed by Punjab's govt without taking its consent or that of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee (SGPC) and Guru Khalsa Panth. It accuses govt of trying to meddle in religious affairs.

The Akal Takht objects to bringing granthis, gurdwara committees and other sewadars within the legal framework, and also opposes the clause to display on SGPC's website information on who possesses the sacred "Birs" of Guru Granth Sahib. The officiating jathedar asked govt to include a provision to register a case against the head of the dera concerned if a person connected to it deliberately commits sacrilege.

At Monday's meeting, all Sikh ministers and MLAs agreed to make the changes suggested by Akal Takht.

Giani Gargajj said that during discussions, most MLAs honestly admitted that they had not read the draft of the legal amendment before passing it. This shows that the law was passed by Punjab's govt in a hurry, without understanding its seriousness and sensitivity, he said.

"This is very serious negligence by Punjab govt. It sent the draft law to MLAs only a day in advance. Neither was a copy of the original law of 2008 provided to them," he said. "Through this amendment, govt has interfered in Sikh 'Maryada', jurisdiction of the Akal Takht and internal functioning of the SGPC," he added. Minister Cheema said the proposed amendments would be formally communicated by the Vidhan Sabha Speaker. "Once the proposed amendments are received from Sri Akal Takht Sahib, the govt will examine them in detail and, after due deliberation, take an appropriate decision," he said.

Opposition parties attacked the AAP govt over the controversy. Punjab Congress president Amarinder Singh Raja Warring said govt was "duty-bound" to consult the Akal Takht on Sikh religious affairs before formulating any laws.

Kerala CM to review women's pension scheme

T'puram: The state govt will examine complaints regarding the implementation of the women's security pension scheme before deciding on its continuation, chief minister V D Satheesan told the assembly on Monday, reports Sai Kiran.

Replying to an adjournment motion notice moved by CPM MLA A C Moideen, the CM alleged that the previous LDF govt had announced the scheme in the last month of its 10-year tenure solely with an eye on the assembly polls. "The LDF govt was in power for 120 months. Yet, it announced women's security pension scheme only in the last month of tenure to mislead women ahead of the polls," Satheesan said.

HC questions midnight search at Abhishek's residence

Kolkata: "Why was the search operation conducted in the dead of night?" Calcutta high court on Monday quizzed the state on the search and seizure operation conducted by West Midnapore Police at TMC general secretary Abhishek Banerjee's residence on June 13.

The search was in connection with a Salboni police case where an illegal land transaction accusation was filed against Banerjee's personal assistant Sumit Roy.

Justice Saugata Bhattacharyya observed that there was no scope for interim orders since the search was already over and sought affidavits from the state.

Trinamool had moved the single bench, calling the police search in the dead of night an "excess". Senior advocate Kishore Datta, representing AITC, called it "a misuse of investigation power of the police". He also contended that the search was carried out without a warrant.

Bengal clears OBC quota bills for 66 communities

Proceedings underway in the Bengal assembly on Monday

Kolkata: The Bengal assembly on Monday passed two amendment bills aimed at overhauling the legal framework governing reservations for OBCs, specifying 66 communities (54 Hindu and 12 Muslim communities) outside the SC and ST categories will be eligible for OBC quota. The new framework reduces 65 Muslim sub-groups (from the previous TMC govt-set framework) and nine Hindu sub-groups.

The previous state govt had revised the OBC list first to 113 sub-groups with 77 Muslim and 36 Hindu sub-groups. In 2025, this was struck down by the Calcutta High Court. The govt then revised this to 140 sub-groups which had 77 Muslims, but 63 Hindu sub-groups. The HC had put a stay on this, but the Supreme Court had vacated the stay. Now the OBC classification has reverted back to the pre-Trinamool 66 OBC sub-groups.

The bills passed on Monday also restored greater powers to the West Bengal Commission for Backward Classes while scrapping the statutory recognition accorded to a list of OBC communities under the previous TMC govt.

The West Bengal Backward Classes (Other than Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes) (Reservation of Vacancies in Services and Posts) (Amendment) Bill, 2026 and The West Bengal Commission for Backward Classes (Amendment) Bill, 2026 were introduced by state backward classes welfare minister Gaurishankar Ghosh and passed after a division in the House. The amendments seek to undo changes introduced by the TMC govt in 2012.

BJP had repeatedly alleged that the TMC govt extended OBC benefits disproportionately to Muslim communities while overlooking several socially and educationally backward Hindu groups.

Under the amended law, the state govt, in consultation with the West Bengal Commission for Backward Classes, will determine the percentage of reservation for OBCs and may revise it periodically. However, the overall reservation ceiling will remain capped at 50%. The govt will also be empowered to classify OBC communities into different categories based on the degree of backwardness, following the commission's recommendations.

The amendment to the West Bengal Commission for Backward Classes Act, 1993, allows individuals to apply for inclusion in the OBC list and raise objections regarding over-inclusion or under-inclusion of communities. The commission's recommendations on such matters will be binding on the govt.

Two minors ran away from an ashram school in the western suburbs after being assaulted

Mumbai: An FIR has been lodged against the manager of an ashram school in the western suburbs for allegedly physically assaulting two boys, aged 11 and 14, which forced them to flee in the dead of night earlier this month.

A passenger found the children at Dadar station as they were planning to board a train to Ahilyanagar and took them to GRP. They are currently at a govt shelter.

The 11-year-old told police he used to live in the eastern suburbs with his parents and studied till Class 4 in a civic school. But his parents used to fight very often and he was, therefore, sent to live with his grandmother. In Sept 2025, his father died and his mother then enrolled him at the ashram school. The child and a cousin, who also stayed at the ashram school, were assigned the task of filling up water at 4am every day. On June 8, they finished the task from 4am-5am and went back to bed. The 11-year-old was assigned kitchen duty at 6am, but he and his cousin failed to wake up on time.

The 21-year-old manager, who is physically challenged and wears a prosthetic, hit the cousin with a bottle. He then entered the kitchen where the 11-year-old was working, hit him twice on the back, grabbed him by his neck, and slapped him multiple times.

The boy later confided in his 14-year-old friend, whose task was to purchase vegetables from a vendor. The two then decided to escape. The older boy borrowed Rs 100 from the vendor. They boarded a Churchgate-bound local train and got off at Dadar.

If Speaker gives nod to merger, NDA's tally to get big boost

Two regional parties not aligned to either NDA or opposition INDIA bloc — BJD (5) and YSR (4) — have often backed govt's key legislative agenda in the past. Their support will take NDA's tally to 160.

Whenever bypolls to fill three vacancies from West Bengal are held, BJP is all but certain to grab them due to its dominant numbers in the assembly. This will take NDA's strength to 163 in the full RS of 245 MPs, in which the two-thirds mark will be 164.

With TMC rebels claiming that more RS members of the party may resign, NDA will be more than hopeful of reaching the magic figure. However, BJD president Naveen Patnaik had opposed linking the delimitation process to the women's quota rollout when the bill was introduced and eventually defeated in the Lok Sabha in April.

Govt faces a bigger challenge in the Lok Sabha, even though the rebellion in two opposition parties, including TMC, which had the fourth largest contingent of 28 MPs, coupled with DMK's break-up with Congress, has boosted NDA's hopes. If Speaker Om Birla recognises the merger of 20 rebel TMC MPs with Nationalist Citizens Party of India and of 6 rebel Shiv Sena (UBT) members with Eknath Shinde-led Shiv Sena, NDA's tally will receive a big boost, though it will still fall well short of the required 360 Lok Sabha.

Those Little Specks

Yes, many islands have strategic importance. But ignoring their ecosystems is a self-goal

Modi's visit to Seychelles highlights the growing importance of islands in current geopolitics. But islands have always played a pivotal role in human affairs. Not just in terms of strategy, but civilisationally. Recently, indigenous people of Taiwan's Orchid Island undertook a historic sea voyage by a hand-built boat. The journey from Orchid Island to Batanes Islands in Philippines across the Bashi Channel, retraces a 4,000-year-old migratory route, connecting the Austronesian island people of the Pacific. Islands are amazing hotspots of human culture and biodiversity. Despite accounting for a mere 5% of our planet's landmass, they are home to 20% of all bird, reptile, plant species. Plus, they are the barometers of overall planetary health.

Yet, throughout history, islands and islanders have received stepmotherly treatment. They have borne the brunt of policy exclusion and climate injustice. Orchid Island, in 1980s, was used as a dump yard for low-grade nuclear waste – the current Taiwanese govt has acknowledged this historical mistake and vowed to make amends. Similarly, US nuclear testing on Bikini Atoll vapourised several islets, poisoned the soil and water, and left locals with long-term health consequences. Then there are Chagos Islands, which were forcibly cleared of local inhabitants by the British, to make way for a joint UK-US military base on Diego Garcia.

Unfortunately, islands today are viewed as strategic pieces to be acquired, developed or militarised to serve national security goals. And current wars in Persian Gulf and Black Sea have only reinforced this perception. Add to this new engineering tech to expand islands or even build artificial ones – like China is doing in South China Sea.

All of this not only diminishes islands and islanders, but also desensitises non-islanders to the fragile ecosystems and civilisational heritage of islands. It's nobody's case that islands should not be developed for national interests. But often such development overlooks the damage it does to islands, and their people. Surely, India's strategic interests in the Great Nicobar Island can be secured without felling 15mn trees in virgin rainforests. One way to go would be to listen to local inhabitants and make them stakeholders in development – something, historically, countries haven't done. India could lead this change.

India's Crimfluencers

When hunt for social media likes leads to harmful public behaviour, penalties must be severe

If you're in a wildlife sanctuary, and your idea of fun is to chase down a gazelle – a protected species – in your SUV, you certainly have no business being there. So, it's good that Ladakh admin punished a bunch of tourists – one of them had been driving in Pangong Lake – for such misdemeanours over the past fortnight. We wish their punishment had been harsher. Reports say four SUVs were impounded and released on payment of ₹50,000 each. But they shouldn't have been released at all. Not so soon at least. Yes, ₹50,000 sounds like a lot, but so does ₹10,000 for driving without PUC. Yet, half the country drives without it, and that's an understatement.

Illegal off-roading has become a serious problem in Ladakh. Since the region's tourist season lasts till Sept, we'll know soon whether the ₹50,000 deterrent worked. If it didn't, the admin mustn't hesitate to use harsher measures. This isn't an attack on civil liberties. Rather, it's a bid to restrain behaviour that endangers other people, animals and the whole ecosystem. Nor are such loutish visitors good for eco-tourism and the economy long-term.

To address the issue, also look at its motivations. Why are such tourists – with clearly no love for nature – making these long journeys? The answer, more often than not, is self-aggrandisement on social media. It's a global problem. In 2018, LA County reported search and rescue missions had increased 38% in five years, coinciding with the social media explosion. People were rushing to national parks to perform dangerous stunts that they had seen others do. Around the same time, stunts like jumping off buildings became popular in Russia.

Australia has an apt word for people who perform dangerous and illegal acts for social-media fame – crimfluencers. And its states have been trying to bring strict laws against "post and boast" trends. Proposals include takedown orders for content, heavy fines, and up to three years' jail for glorification of such acts on social media. India must also get strict on "performance crime", because it's getting out of hand now.

Behavioural Passport

You don't need some GOI paper to prove you're Indian

Mohit Hira

If your passport doesn't prove you're Indian, voluntarily offer these simple tests instead. These will do the job.

Standing Test | When landing abroad, jump up before the aircraft stops, climb over co-passengers, open the overhead bin, pull out the muffler, and throw it across three rows to your coughing child. Unmistakably Indian, you are.

Driving Test | When interrogated at Heathrow Airport, insist on a vehicle, and make the immigration officer sit alongside. Before he's fastened his seat belt, start driving. Overtake other cars with rude honks, jump red lights, yank out your phone, and greet Mummy-ji back home. With one hand on the wheel, use the other to glug that miniature whisky you nipped from the flight. Flouting all rules proves that you are undoubtedly desi.

Saliva Test | If you're stopped by a Bobby, open your mouth and spit out a semi-solid chunk of white phlegm that lands close to his shiny shoes. Clear your throat loudly, spout the popular adjectives that recall mothers and sisters. Again, Indian without disbelief.

Jumping Test | Europeans love queues, we don't. Regardless of the length of a line, shove your way through. Tell them that you – like all impatient Indians – are always in a hurry. If there are protests, utter those magic words: Jaanta hai mera baap kaun hai? For further queries, flaunt his name on your passport – it is, surely, proof of parentage.

Voice Test | We Indians also believe Jo tera hai woh mera hai. Peer into the mobile of the person next to you, let him smell your breakfast as you burp into his ears. Watch a movie on your mobile without earphones. To answer questions on nationality, always raise your voice.

Finger Test | If you're asked for your passport, first dig your right index finger into your hairy nostril, examine the sticky object that emerges, and flick it onto the person behind. Then take your left little finger and worm it into your equally hairy ear. Dig around, pull out some brown wax. Never wipe it off. Instead, pull out your Indian passport, hold it with both hands, proffer it politely to the officer who dared ask for it. No way will they touch it.

Forget the passport. Be Indian, always.

Why Siya Couldn't Say No To Marriage

True, she may be found guilty. It's also true Indian parents, especially in small to midsize business families, fully control their adult sons' & daughters' lives. 'Obedient children' are a status symbol

Chetan Bhagat

Pune's Siya Goyal-Ketan Agarwal-Chetan Chaudhary case, under investigation, is an extreme, outlier case. For those unfamiliar, 20-year-old Siya Goyal was engaged to Ketan Agarwal in an arranged marriage. However, Siya had been dating Chetan Chaudhary. On June 18, during a trek to Lohagad Fort near Pune, Siya and Chetan allegedly pushed Ketan off the fort, killing him.

This is according to police briefings. All caveats and disclaimers apply as investigations proceed – if someone did kill Ketan, they deserve punishment.

Whether this particular case ultimately proves to be about family pressure is for police and courts to determine. What it has undeniably done, however, is reignite a conversation millions of young Indians immediately recognised: how much control should parents exercise over adult wards' lives?

Apparently, per police, Siya did not take the obvious route of calling off the wedding because she hesitated, believing cancelling the wedding would bring shame on her parents. So hesitant that she would rather kill the guy?

Reason the case has garnered so much attention is because many Indian families do not address the elephant in the room – parental control over children's lives, a control that never ends. From biscuits to brides, Indian parents want to decide everything for you – how you will live, what you'll eat or drink, how you'll pray, what you'll wear, who you'll date (nobody), whom you'll marry (the person we choose, with three-factor authentication of caste, community, and religion), when you will copulate, and when you'll produce offspring. Miss a beat, and emotional manipulations begin – silent treatments, loud tears, even suicide threats.

In Siya's case, going by her parents' statements, they (a) had no clue their daughter had a boyfriend, (b) knew she wasn't keen on marriage, even though the marriage was fixed when she was 19 (seriously?), and (c) realised she didn't want to marry Ketan, the man they had chosen for her.

It isn't just Siya. This is representative of Indian parents, particularly in business families. Those ₹10cr to ₹500cr SME-type families who behave like little kings running empires. They feel rich and big, unaware that they're very small fry, in the global pool of entrepreneurs, where at one end there's a trillionaire.

These crorepatis hire an army of servants to prove a point. They run their businesses exactly as their parents/grandparents did – with zero innovation, vision, R&D or ideas. Business survives, but ambition often shifts from building better companies to maintaining family status.

With every comfort at home, and little innovation at work, these businessmen channel their ambitions into social status, obsessing over vanity, displaying wealth, perceived respect in society, and seeking validation from fellow types.

What better way to get that validation than by controlling your children and their pointless, lavish weddings? Flaunt wealth, show off a compliant 'child' – for at least a few moments, the hollow, regressive, and shallow business family gets validation, as they burn fireworks and crores at destination weddings.

Many young women, online, have shown empathy for Siya – yes, an alleged murderer – about the pressure she may have felt in simply calling off the wedding. "We get it," many progressive Gen Z girls say when they hear that Siya could not tell her parents she loved another man.

Kids grow up. They fall in love and date, wanting to live their own lives. Free will, liberty, or agency over one's own life is a fundamental human need. When will Indian parents understand this? When will business families realise their children are not trophy cattle? And that those ostentatious weddings are tacky and gross?

Maybe spend that money on R&D? Ever looked at China's business sector? Never thought of building robotics companies instead of trying to find rishtas for your daughter and blowing ₹10cr on a wedding in Udaipur?

Is it all the parents' fault, though? Is Gen Z totally off the hook? No.

First, in this case, it's Gen Z kids who're the accused. Eliminating a person instead of having the courage to stand up to your outdated dad and mom is weak, lame, and borderline evil.

Gen Z needs to stand the hell up to these regressive practices at home. The day you agree to bend a little – meet that rishta when you didn't want to, sneak away and have a beer when you could have simply told them you had a drink, or say yes to a match when you were seeing someone else – you encourage more regressive behaviour from your parents. Stop. Stand up. Tell the previous generation they are wrong. It's okay. India has suffered far too much and remained far too backward for the sake of this phony "respect" for elders.

There's one more issue with Gen Z kids from business families that makes it especially hard for them to stand up to their parents. They inherit comfort before they earn independence. Financial dependence makes emotional independence much harder. They never study well, never earn quality qualifications, never learn business properly, and never develop the hunger or drive to take it to the next level.

As a result, they are utterly dependent on Daddy to fund their lives. The euphemism these kids use for it is "my support system", which is a crutch in reality. You grew up in comfort. You never learned how to be uncomfortable and succeed. You never learnt how the real world works.

When parents pay all the bills and fund your lifestyle, it isn't easy to stand up to them. But then, they will control you. Want to live your own life? Become somebody. Then stand up to them. Grow up. And say no to those garish wedding sets for your special day. You look like a stage exhibit.

Time has come to call out those in India's affluent yet regressive society, which is doing a great disservice to our economy, to businesses that remain mediocre, and drive Gen Z to a point where they feel suffocated. Stifled to the point of taking extreme actions. It is time for a wider discussion on how our business families need to change and get rid of an outdated value system.

Have 12 Years Of BJP Govt Made India Future-Ready?

Positives are expanded state capacity, stronger geopolitical standing, quality digital infra & stable macros. But economic dividends are smaller than expected. And can we deploy AI at scale without deepening talent pool?

Duvvuri Subbarao

As Modi completed twelve years in office, assessments of his tenure have become a growth industry. Supporters point to phenomenal infra expansion, welfare delivery, digital public infra, improved tax compliance and an assertive foreign policy. Critics point to weak employment generation, persistent agrarian distress, growing inequality and deepening social polarisation.

Yet, for drawing up BJP govt's report card, there is a more useful framing than cataloguing achievements and failures. The true test of a head of govt is not necessarily what they accomplish during their tenure, but whether they prepare their country for the challenges that lie beyond.

The world today is being reshaped by five powerful structural forces: AI, climate change, geopolitical fragmentation, demographic transitions, and reconfiguration of globalisation. Question is: is India ready to navigate these forces?

Viewed through that lens, India's preparedness is stronger than critics acknowledge, yet not perhaps strong enough to inspire confidence.

Consider first the geopolitical landscape. Post-Cold War era of hyper-globalisation is giving way to a more fragmented world order. Strategic competition between Washington and Beijing is reshaping trade, tech and investment flows. Supply chains are designed as much for resilience and security, as for efficiency.

This should create a historic opportunity for India. As companies seek alternatives to excessive dependence on China, India ought to be a natural destination. Modi govt has undoubtedly strengthened India's geopolitical standing and deepened relations across the geopolitical spectrum, while preserving strategic autonomy.

Yet, the economic dividend remains smaller than many expected. Investors continue to worry about regulatory unpredictability, legal delays, and implementation deficit targets. India is better placed than it was a decade ago, but whether it can emerge as a genuine manufacturing alternative to China remains an open question.

Stakes for the second structural force, AI, are particularly high, because AI challenges one of the foundations of India's economic success over the last three decades. India's rise as a software and services powerhouse was built on abundant pools of skilled, relatively low-cost knowledge workers. If machines perform routine cognitive work, the traditional outsourcing model will come under pressure.

India enters the AI age with strengths: engineering talent, entrepreneurial energy, a large domestic market, and perhaps the world's most sophisticated digital public infra. Yet it remains largely absent from the frontier of AI development.

That need not be fatal. Countries do not always lead tech revolutions by inventing the underlying techs. They also lead by deploying them at scale. India's opportunity may lie in becoming the world's largest laboratory for the application of AI. AI-enabled tutors could improve learning outcomes, AI-assisted diagnostics could expand healthcare access, and AI-driven advisory systems could raise agricultural productivity. The challenge is not merely technological. It is educational. In the age of AI, human capital may matter even more than computing power.

Climate change constitutes the third structural challenge. Modi govt deserves credit for placing renewable energy at the centre of India's development strategy. Yet, adaptation may ultimately matter more than mitigation. Rising temperatures, water stress, extreme weather events, and erratic monsoons threaten economic growth and social stability. Climate resilience must become a central pillar of development policy.

The fourth megatrend is demographics, which could potentially be among India's greatest strengths. India remains one of the few major economies with a favourable age profile even as populations age across advanced economies and China.

But a demographic dividend is not inevitable. A young population becomes an asset only if it is educated, skilled, and productively employed. Concerns about educational quality, workforce readiness and job creation remain significant. India's demographic window will not remain open indefinitely. The next decade may determine whether this advantage becomes a springboard for prosperity, or a source of frustration.

The final structural force is the changing nature of globalisation itself. Globalisation is not ending; it is being reconfigured. Trade, capital and tech continue to flow across borders, but increasingly within frameworks shaped by geopolitics, and national security considerations.

India's approach has arguably been too cautious. If India is serious about integrating into global supply chains and expanding exports, it must bite the bullet, and join a major free trade agreement. Without deeper trade integration, aspirations of becoming a manufacturing hub and export powerhouse will remain largely unrealised.

Taken together, these five trends suggest a broader assessment of BJP govt's legacy. The most significant contribution may not be any single policy or programme but strengthening of state capacity. Roads, ports, airports, digital infra, financial inclusion systems, and welfare delivery mechanisms all increase India's ability to respond to future challenges. They are platforms upon which future growth and adaptation can occur.

The real question is not whether India has become a larger economy – it undoubtedly has – but whether it has become a more resilient one. Resilience is the new growth. In a world shaped by technological disruption, climate shocks, geopolitical tensions, and economic uncertainty, the capacity to absorb shocks and adapt quickly may matter as much as rapid GDP growth. Ultimately, India's greatest strengths will not be physical infra alone, but educational excellence, scientific innovation, institutional quality, and social cohesion.

Nearly a century ago, in his celebrated essay Economic Possibilities for our Grandchildren, Keynes asked what kind of world future generations would inherit from ours. Modi govt should be evaluated by that metric: is it leaving our grandchildren a country capable of thriving amid uncertainties of the 21st century?

The Relationship Nobody Talks About!

Swami Tejomayananda

From the moment we are born, our first and primary relationship is with our parents. Through them, we become related to siblings, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins, and many others. These relationships are not of our making; they come with our birth. Thus, whether we like or dislike them, own or disown them, they continue to exist. Relationships with friends and spouses are formed and can therefore be broken. Our relationship with our parents, however, lasts only for this life.

Who is related to us in every life? Which relationship is the fundamental and absolute one? It is our relationship with God. I am a part, and He is the whole. I am an individual, and He is the total. Can the part exist without the whole? How intimately is a part related to the whole? Is a part ever separated from the whole?

Upanishads describe God as the Virat Purush, Cosmic Being, and every jiva individual being as part of Him. The universe is made up of the five elements: space, air, water, fire, and earth. This body too is an aggregate of these elements. Are not individual bodies, made of the five elements, part of the totality of the five elements? Is there a separate space for this body apart from cosmic space? There are countless waves in the ocean. Each wave is born in the ocean, exists in it, and subsides into it. Its relationship with other waves is temporary, but its relationship with the ocean is primary and absolute. Likewise, we are all a part of God and one with Him. How can we ignore this eternal relationship?

THE SPEAKING TREE

The Mundaka Upanishad offers a beautiful metaphor: in this tree-like body, two bird-friends dwell. One is God and the other the individual. The individual keeps pecking at sweet-and-sour fruits, alternating between happiness and unhappiness.

Helplessly caught in the conflicts and confusions of life, it looks up to its God-friend and becomes truly happy.

We suffer because we seek support from those who are dependent and helpless. Relationships bind us. We feel burdened by responsibilities, attached to possessions, worried about our children, and hurt by rejection and insult. This is because we forget that relatives and relationships are only relative – not absolute. They are secondary, not fundamental. We do not have to renounce worldly relationships to remember our relationship with God. When we realise it, we understand that not only do we belong to God, but so does everyone else – equally, totally, and absolutely. This remembrance divinises all worldly relationships.

When we ignore our relationship with God, we suffer. How can i feel helpless when i am aware of God's support? How can i feel insecure under the protection of the omnipotent God? How can I feel lonely when i am always in His embrace? Remembrance of our relationship with God is the result of the merits of previous lives, listening to and understanding the scriptures, and the grace of the Guru and God. The Guru unites the individual, who, through ignorance, feels separated from God, with knowledge.

May we always remember our oneness with God and our primary and absolute relationship with Him.

Restoring Confidence To Top His Agenda Post Recent Turmoil

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Mumbai: The HDFC Bank board has appointed former chief election commissioner and ex-finance secretary Rajiv Kumar as chairman of the bank, subject to RBI approval. Starting June 30, the board has proposed a four-year term.

The appointment ends uncertainty over the next chairman, following the sudden resignation of former chairman Atanu Chakraborty in March, who cited that his role was not congruous with his values and ethics. His resignation was followed by the appointment of board member Keki Mistry as interim chairman and an investigation by a legal panel, which found no evidence that Chakraborty had raised any concerns about the bank.

Kumar, 66, a 1984-batch IAS officer of the Jharkhand cadre, headed the department of financial services from 2017 to 2020, at a time of peak banking stress marked by unprovided bad loans, weak capital, and a freeze in loan growth. Within weeks, Kumar froze 3.4 lakh shell firms, striking at black-money networks. This was followed by the 2019 deposits-ban law to curb ponzi schemes.

His tenure saw a clean-up of public sector bank balance sheets through bad-loan recognition and enforcement of IBC-led borrower accountability. He later served as chief election commissioner, overseeing the 2024 Lok Sabha elections.

He will be expected to use the same skills to restore confidence in the bank, which has seen a large number of senior-level exits in recent months. Kumar's appointment is the latest in a broader churn in private banks. Apart from the chairman's appointment, the bank's board must also decide on the succession of the chief executive, as Sashidhar Jagdishan's current term as MD and CEO ends on Oct 26, 2026. The board will have to submit at least three candidates to the regulator for approval.

Bank CFOs: A game of musical chairs

Mumbai: HDFC Bank CFO Sreenivasan Vaidyanathan's impending retirement has triggered a chain of resignations. Axis Bank CFO Puneet Sharma has quit to replace Vaidyanathan as CFO-designate effective Sept 1, 2026, and CFO from Dec 1, 2026. Sharma's vacancy will be filled by Bandhan Bank's executive president and CFO Rajeev Mantri who has resigned and will serve a 90-day notice period until Sept 26, 2026. Earlier, Bhavin Lakhpatwala, a senior finance executive at HDFC Bank, moved to RBL Bank as CFO last week after Emirates acquired a majority stake in the private bank in 2025. Vaidyanathan's term at HDFC Bank ends in Oct 2026. Last week Life Insurance Corporation of India's chief financial officer Sunil Agrawal resigned to pursue better prospects. TNN

Zerodha seeks Sebi approval for merchant banking

Bengaluru: Zerodha has applied to market regulator Sebi for a Category-I merchant banking licence, marking the stock broking firm's latest move to expand beyond retail investing and wealth management into investment banking and capital markets advisory. If approved, the licence would allow the company to manage public issues, including initial public offerings (IPOs), advise companies on capital raising and provide other merchant banking services. The move comes as India's IPO market remains active, with several venture-backed startups and new-age companies preparing to go public over the next few years. For Zerodha, investment banking could provide an opportunity to engage with companies before they list, rather than serving investors only after they enter public markets. TNN

Turtlemint makes weak market debut

Bengaluru: Insurance distribution platform Turtlemint Fintech Solutions made a weak stock market debut on Monday, listing at a discount to its IPO price amid tepid investor demand. The stock opened at Rs 134.9 on the NSE, down 11.2% from its issue price of Rs 152, while on the BSE it debuted at Rs 136.2, a discount of 10.3%. The weak listing was largely in line with expectations, as the stock had been trading at a negative grey market premium ahead of its debut, indicating investors anticipated a listing below the issue price. Turtlemint's Rs 883-crore IPO comprised a fresh issue of Rs 661 crore and an offer for sale of Rs 222 crore by existing shareholders. The company also raised Rs 397.2 crore from anchor investors. The IPO saw modest demand, with overall subscription at 1.24 times. TNN

The lender reported assets under management of Rs 21,124 crore as of Dec 2025 and delivered a 48.6% CAGR over FY23 to FY25. TNN

Mfg powers industrial output growth of 5.1%

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Industrial production grew 5.1% in May 2026, as against 3.4% a year ago, on account of strong expansion recorded in electricity and manufacturing sectors during the month, pointing to a resilient domestic demand in the face of the conflict in the West Asia. Sequentially too, industrial production fared better in May as compared to 4.9% in April.

The index of industrial production (IIP) data released by the statistics ministry Monday is the second in series with the new 2022-23 base year. Govt has incorporated further changes in methodology during the month as it now uses producer price index (PPI) as a deflator to estimate real output, thus discontinuing the use of wholesale price index (WPI) for this purpose altogether. Among the sub sectors, electricity and gas supply (9.9%) showed robust growth in May, followed by manufacturing (5.5%), water supply, sewerage & waste management (5.5%). Meanwhile, mining and quarrying (-1.6%) recorded decline in production during the month. Bank of Baroda chief economist Madan Sabnavis said performance is encouraging, notwithstanding the global environment. "Electricity fared better as heat wave led to higher demand along with the focus on renewables, though there were positive base effects too," he said.

Among the manufacturing sector, industries like apparel, wood products, printing material, and refinery products, though registered a decline in production as the export market got affected by global turmoil. Among use-based categories, capital goods output expanded by double digits (12.9%), followed by consumer durables (7.2%), infra/construction goods (5.9%), intermediate goods (5.8%), and consumer non-durables (3.6%).

'Reforms have made data more credible'

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: Reforms undertaken by India's official statistical machinery in recent years have led to updating of macroeconomic indicators, improved data dissemination, introduction of new and user demand-based surveys, laying the foundation for a more robust, credible and future ready statistical system, principal secretary to PM PK Mishra said Monday.

Addressing a an even on Statistics Day, Mishra said that starting 2020, several key steps were taken by PMO and statistics ministry to "analyse, identify and address" the challenges and criticism levelled against official data pertaining to outdated datasets, delays in data dissemination, uneven data quality and declining professional capacity.

"These concerns prompted a comprehensive reform exercise through extensive consultations with experts, key institutions and stakeholders. Based on these deliberations, statistics ministry accepted 216 recommendations for time bound implementation under an institutional oversight mechanism," said Mishra. He stressed that these reforms were achieved without constituting new committees or engaging external consultants.

"Administrative data can become a powerful national asset only when backed by robust standards of quality, privacy and transparency, the need to preserve the credibility and independence of official statistics while embracing new data sources," he said.

Statistics secretary Saurabh Garg said the next major governance leap will come from integrating the siloed govt datasets to create a unified understanding of the society as harmonised administrative data can enable more evidence-based and citizen-centric policymaking.

National investment fund gets another ₹30k cr boost

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

New Delhi: The Union cabinet has cleared fresh investment commitment of Rs 30,000 crore towards new funds being set up by National Investment and Infrastructure Fund (NIIF) as it seeks to leverage the additional resources to raise money from other investors.

NIIF intends to set up a second infrastructure focused fund and will also support new fund strategies and successor bilateral and strategic funds, an official statement said.

"Recognising the role that NIIF has played over the years in bringing additional private capital to India and contributing to India's growth journey, this additional commitment of govt of India is expected to spur investments across sectors including transportation, energy, digital infrastructure, urban infrastructure, e-mobility and other nationally important projects," it added. India's sovereign-anchored fund, where govt is a 49% shareholder, currently manages capital commitments of around Rs 40,000 crore across its funds and investment strategies. It has returned close to Rs. 12,000 crore to investors through large portfolio exits.

Of its four operational investment strategies — infrastructure, private markets, growth equity, and climate investments in the India-Japan business corridor — NIIF's first infrastructure fund, with a corpus of Rs. 16,000 crore, is India's largest domestic infrastructure fund and has created platforms across transportation and digital infrastructure. Its Private Markets Fund has invested in multiple daughter AIFs (Alternate Investment Funds) managed by homegrown managers, which in turn have invested in areas such as climate, affordable housing, affordable healthcare, and venture capital (VC)/technologies. NIIF's Strategic Opportunities Fund has focused on growth sectors, such as financial services, healthcare and manufacturing. NIIF's India-Japan Fund is its first bilateral fund and focuses on climate & circular economy and energy transition.

NIIF has raised capital from marquee institutional investors, including sovereign wealth funds, pension funds, multilateral development banks, and domestic financial institutions, including Abu Dhabi Investment Authority, AustralianSuper, CPP Investments, Ontario Teachers' Pension Plan, PSP Investments and Temasek, among others.

Amazon, Flipkart turn up quick commerce heat

Mkt Share Battle: Eternal, Swiggy Face Stock Price Pressure Despite Huge Cash Balances

Asmita.Dey@timesofindia.com

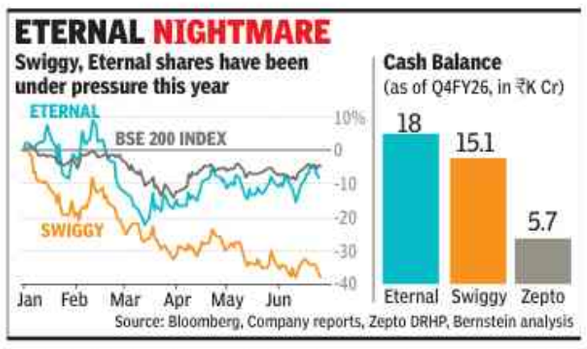
Mumbai: Amazon and Walmart's Flipkart have made it clear that they are not going to play on the sidelines in India's quick commerce battlefield. Big money, aggressive dark store expansion, discounts, cashbacks—everything is on the table. Listed players Eternal which owns Blinkit and Swiggy are jittery despite sitting on cash balance worth about Rs 18,000 crore and Rs 15,053 crore respectively which analysts at Bernstein said is enough to sustain more than three years of current burn rates. The stock price of Eternal is down nearly 30% from 52-week high while that of Swiggy's has declined by almost 50% from 52-week high as of Monday's closing price. This roughly translates to a sell-off of more than $15 billion for the companies, estimates by Bloomberg showed.

The sector, analysts at Emkay said, is in a "land-grab phase," and the entry of deep-pocketed Amazon and Flipkart will keep competition elevated, leading to market share pressure for players focused on unit economics. Swiggy, in fact, is shifting its posture to prioritise unit economics and sustainability over short-term market share, said analysts at The Knowledge Company (TKC). Last week, Amazon chief Andy Jassy visited India, first time since taking charge as the CEO in 2021, announcing expansion of its quick commerce service Now to more than 300 cities from over 15 locations currently. Eternal and Swiggy's share price took a hit immediately, falling up to 2% in intra-day trading on Jun 24. Under Jassy, Amazon has set out to build the largest delivery in minutes network, moving fast to make up for the lost ground following a delayed market entry. Flipkart Minutes has covered more than 130 cities in about two years of launch amid mounting pressure posed by Blinkit, Swiggy and Zepto's market share gain and rapid expansion. Walmart's new chief John Furner has already visited India in May, taking stock of businesses as both Flipkart and PhonePe prepare for public listings.

A peek into Amazon Now and Flipkart Minutes platforms shows the spate of discounts and cashbacks on offer. The two companies are banking on their huge marketplace customer base to fuel quick delivery growth. For Amazon, the strategy is to win back Prime members they had lost to competition for everyday purchases. In fact, the firm is targeting areas with high Prime member density to capture high AOV urban consumers, said analysts TKC. "The level of discounting by Amazon and Flipkart in quick commerce has not reached the same level as that of their marketplace businesses and is in line with peers for now. Zepto has the highest discount share," said Karan Taurani, SVP at Elara Capital.

Blinkit leads the market in terms of order volumes with a 46% share. Zepto follows with a 35% share and Instamart at 19%, according to Bernstein. Zepto is heading for a $1 billion IPO with losses of Rs 5,905 crore as of FY26.

ETERNAL NIGHTMARE



Persistent CEO cites strict protocol in Nagarro deal

Shilpa.Phadnis
@timesofindia.com

Bengaluru: Responding to concerns over unusual trading in Munich-based IT firm Nagarro's shares ahead of the deal announcement, Persistent Systems CEO Sandeep Kalra said the company followed "a very strict protocol" and tightly controlled access to the transaction.

His comments came after Nagarro chief executive Manas Human told Reuters that he expected Germany's financial regulator, BaFin, to investigate the sharp rise in Nagarro's stock before the takeover was announced.

Nagarro's shares surged nearly 20% to €40.4 on Friday, hours before the two companies unveiled the $1.3-billion deal after market closing. On Monday, the stock jumped another 88% to around €76, nearing Persistent's offer price of €81 a share.

"We had a very small team working on the transaction. Between Persistent and our advisory teams, the process was very tightly controlled," Kalra said. "I have no other comments to make because I have no idea what may or may not have happened elsewhere. I would be very disappointed and shocked if anything had leaked from our side. There's also no reason for people in India or within our teams to trade because they have zero trading capability in Germany."

Persistent's all-cash acquisition of Nagarro would create a $2.9-billion digital engineering and AI company employing more than 46,000 people.

The market, however, reacted cautiously. Persistent's shares fell nearly 11% on Monday to a near 15-month low as investors and analysts flagged concerns over the acquisition's size, integration risks and Nagarro's lower margins. "That's something you see with almost every large acquisition. The initial reaction is often not positive because investors don't necessarily understand the strategic rationale immediately. Their first response is usually: it's too big, it's happening in a difficult environment, and so on," Kalra said.

> I would be very disappointed and shocked if anything had leaked from our side. There's also no reason for people in India or within our teams to trade because they have zero trading capability in Germany.
> Sandeep Kalra | CEO, PERSISTENT SYSTEMS

He said the deal represented a rare opportunity and that Persistent may not have been able to acquire an asset of Nagarro's scale in a stronger market. He also pointed to Persistent's track record of 24 consecutive quarters of more than 3% sequential growth, saying the transaction would prove accretive over time. Kalra said Persistent had long maintained that any large-scale acquisition would likely be in Europe, where the company remains underrepresented, with only 8.5% of its revenue coming from the region and 82% from the US.

"This acquisition changes that dramatically," he said. The combined entity will derive around 65% of its revenue from the US and 22% from Europe, while also giving Persistent a foothold in markets such as the Middle East, North Africa and Japan. On integration concerns, Kalra stressed that Nagarro is not a purely European company. Around 13,000 of its 18,500 employees are based in India and it already operates with a globally distributed delivery model. "There is already a degree of cultural harmony," he said.

He also dismissed concerns over customer overlap. "There is minimal overlap in customers. Among the top 150 clients of both companies, less than 10 overlap. There are no turf wars here," he said. "Nagarro has a more than $200-million SAP practice, while we have virtually no SAP business."

Persistent expects to secure regulatory approvals within four to six months.

Metro premium: Big city, bigger the pay

Shiva.Rajora@timesofindia.com

New Delhi: People in India's 46 million-plus cities are earning significantly more than their counterparts in other urban areas, a new report released by NSO showed Monday.

In 2025, a self-employed worker in Delhi, Bengaluru, Patna, Ahmedabad, Surat and Mumbai, among others, earned an average Rs 30,858 a month – 34% higher than their counterparts in other urban areas of the country, said the report, which analysed data from NSO's own periodic labour force survey (PLFS) and annual survey on unincorporated sector enterprises (ASUSE). Similarly, a regular salaried employee earned Rs 28,808 in a month, which is 10% higher, while casual labourers earned Rs 624 a day, compared with Rs 550.

More than 55% of workers are engaged in regular salaried wage employment in these cities. Also, they had a higher share of workers engaged in public and private limited companies (24.3%) compared to urban India (17.2%).

Other labour market indicators, like the unemployment rate (UR) and labour force participation rate (LFPR) also showed improvement in these urban agglomerations over the past decade.

Regular workers, self-employed and entrepreneurs fare better in India's largest cities, NSO report shows

The UR in the large cities stood at 4.9% in 2025, as against 5.8% in 2021-22 and 7.9% in 2017-18. LFPR which represents the share of people working or looking for work has also risen to 52.4% in 2025, compared with 47.7% in 2017-18, driven in part by a rise in female labour force participation to 27.2% from 19.8% over the same period.

The unincorporated sector in these cities also exhibits higher productivity levels, employment generation potential and entrepreneurship.

Kolkata, Surat, and Greater Hyderabad emerged as the leading centres of entrepreneurial activity, jointly accounting for more than 22% of the total estimated establishments across all million-plus cities.

A similar concentration was observed in employment. The proportion of establishments employing at least one hired worker - referred to as Hired Worker Establishments (HWEs) - was higher in million-plus cities (24%) compared to other urban areas (19%). Cities like Greater Hyderabad, Delhi, and Kolkata recorded the highest estimated number of workers in the unincorporated sector, together contributing around 22% of the total workforce employed.

Indians turn to Anthropic's Claude for homework, coding

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Bengaluru: Indians are using Anthropic's AI assistant Claude primarily for homework, coding and writing tasks, according to the company's latest Economic Index report, which tracks how AI is being used across work and daily life.

India ranks 103rd among 121 countries on Anthropic's country usage dashboard. But within the country, usage patterns reveal a strong skew toward education, software development and content creation. Homework emerged as the top use case, accounting for 7.9% of Claude conversations in India. This was followed by web front-end work (5.1%), self-presentation writing (4.6%), promotional writing (4.6%), starting a business (3.6%) and business operations (3%).

India also over-indexed on technical and student-centric categories compared with the global average. Conversations around math and computer science theory appeared twice as often as the global average, while AI app building was 1.8 times more common. Document transformation and web front-end work were 1.6 times and 1.5 times higher, respectively.

TOP INDIA USE CASES OF CLAUDE

Topic	Share
Homework	7.9%
Web front-end	5.1%
Self-presentation writing	4.6%
Promotional writing	4.6%
Starting a business	3.6%
Business operations	3%

Brazil Star Says His Impact Off The Pitch Matters More; Reflects On His Grandmother's Influence

Houston: Brazil and Real Madrid star Vinicius Jr. has spoken candidly about his personal journey, his deep emotional bond with his grandmother and his ongoing fight against racism in football, while reflecting on his World Cup aspirations and career milestones in an interview with Brazilian broadcaster Globo TV.

Unwavering support system

Vinicius Jr. spoke at length about the pivotal role his grandmother played in shaping his early life, describing her as one of the most important influences in his upbringing.

"My grandmother is a very important person in my life. I lived with her until I was 16 years old. When you started speaking, I already knew it was her," he told Globo TV.

He recalled growing up in a small home surrounded by family and the unwavering support system his grandmother provided throughout his childhood. "She's a very important person to me because my father always lived far away. So I always had my mother and my siblings with my grandmother, who did everything for us. The house was very small—I slept in the same room as her. I even run out of words. She's a person who shaped my life," he added.

Using his platform to fight racism

The Brazilian forward emphasised that his impact off the pitch carries greater significance than his achievements on it. "These achievements off the field are much more important than those on it, because I can help many more people," he said.

Vini reiterated his commitment to combating racism and using his global platform to inspire future generations. "May the progress continue so that the next generation doesn't suffer from racism," he told Globo TV. AGENCIES

Pyjamas and bets: Brazil YouTube channel reshapes WC viewing

Sao Paulo: The hosts wear pajamas for night games and jokes fly — but discomfort is growing over the pushing of bets on a YouTube channel that has reshaped how Brazilians are watching the World Cup. A record 18 million viewers tuned in to watch Brazil's match against Scotland on CazeTV, which has become a major competitor to media giants like Globo and ESPN in just four years on air.

It is the only place Brazilians can watch all 104 matches of the 2026 World Cup for free, with exclusive rights to 49 games. In one segment, fans are encouraged to send in videos of themselves shouting out of their windows to celebrate goals. "Young people are no longer just spectators, they want to take part in the broadcasts," Bruno Brum, from marketing agency End to End, said.

But in Brazil, where sports gambling and addiction have exploded in recent years, questions have arisen over the constant display of QR codes linking to betting sites and hosts offering betting tips in the middle of matches. This prompted a public consumer protection body to open an investigation this week into suspected "abusive advertising." "It's crazy to encourage people to gamble during a football match," centre-left lawmaker Tabata Amaral said. AFP

BROOS MAY CHANGE DECISION TO QUIT AS SOUTH AFRICA COACH

Johannesburg: Hugo Broos could reverse his decision to quit as South Africa coach, the 74-year-old Belgian said after his side's World Cup last-32 exit against Canada. "It is not clever to make decisions when you are disappointed, so I will not do it here," Broos said at his press conference in LA. "I want to spend more time with my wife, children and grandchildren," he had said in a pre-World Cup interview. But an insider hinted that Broos may now be having second thoughts about leaving.

Left flank isn't right, but France focus on attack

East Rutherford: France's glittering attack carried them smoothly through the World Cup group stage, but coach Didier Deschamps still has issues to solve on the left side of his team before Tuesday's Round of 32 meeting with Sweden.

France finished top of Group I with a perfect record, scoring 10 goals in wins over Senegal, Iraq and Norway, with Kylian Mbappe, Ousmane Dembele and Michael Olise giving them arguably the most devastating attacking unit in the tournament.

Yet the left flank has looked less settled. Theo Hernandez has not fully convinced at left back, and Lucas Digne is expected to come into the side against Sweden, bringing more defensive security and a steadier delivery from wide areas. Further forward, Bradley Barcola is expected to replace Desire Doue on the left of France's attack, with Deschamps looking for more direct running, pace in transition and natural width on the flank opposite the Olise-Mbappe-Dembele axis.

The adjustment would not change France's overall balance but could give them a more coherent left side against a Sweden team likely to defend deep, attack at set pieces and look to expose any space behind France's defence, which has sometimes been caught off guard. The return of William Saliba in central defence will, at least, bring some stability back.

However, any rival will face the same conundrum: however many goals they score, Les Bleus always look capable of scoring one more.

Mbappe has been France's central figure again, while Dembele's hat-trick against Norway and Olise's creativity have underlined the depth of attacking options. Barcola, Doue, Rayan Cherki, Jean-Philippe Mateta or Marcus Thuram give France the kind of bench power no team can match.

Sweden arrive as awkward opponents rather than spectacular ones. They finished second in Group F behind the Netherlands, opening with a 5-1 win over Tunisia before being torn apart by the Dutch 5-1 and drawing with Japan 1-1. However, they have enough physical presence and organisation to make the evening uncomfortable if France lose patience.

The knockout stage is a different test from the group phase. The 2022 final against Argentina aside, France have not lost a knockout game at the World Cup since 2014. Can Sweden cause an upset? "I don't buy it. Sweden have Alexander Isak, Viktor Gyokeres and Anthony Elanga. They are not a bad side, but they are nowhere near France's firepower," former England great Gary Lineker told L'Equipe. Victory would send France into the Round of 16 against Germany or Paraguay. NO CHANGING PHILOSOPHY, SAYS DESCHAMPS

East Rutherford: France will not abandon the attacking philosophy that carried them through the World Cup group stage despite conceding chances, coach Didier Deschamps said on Monday, as midfielder Adrien Rabiot insisted Les Bleus would not let their status as overwhelming favourites breed complacency.

"We have to score one more goal, not give up what we're capable of doing," Deschamps told a press conference on Monday.

"We've conceded a few too many chances. Every match has a different scenario. Can you succeed like that? We did it four years ago.

"We have the ability to create danger and hurt the opposition. That's our strength and I want us to keep that strength."

Rabiot acknowledged there could be tactical adjustments as the twice world champions move deeper into the tournament but said he did not believe his side had been dangerously unbalanced during the group stage.

"I didn't think there was a huge imbalance in terms of chances created and goals conceded," he said.

"Obviously, we gave away chances, but I didn't find there was a major imbalance. It requires adaptations and our back four have maintained a certain discipline. As we move forward, we may have to adjust certain things." REUTERS

Eustaquio, remember that name!

Stoppage-Time Strike Seals Canada's First World Cup Knockout Win

AP

Inglewood: The tension kept building between two teams making their first appearance in a World Cup knockout match. With no goals on the scoreboard, the minutes ticked down with extra time looming.

Then Stephen Eustaquio scored in the second minute of second-half stoppage time, and Canada beat South Africa 1-0 on Sunday. "I shot with everything I had," Eustaquio said.

The party was on, for red-clad fans in the stands at SoFi Stadium and at watch parties across Canada, one of three World Cup hosts.

"Overall, it's pretty much a perfect knockout performance," right back Alistair Johnston said.

Hockey dominates Canada in the winter months. Now, summer belongs to the men's national football team. The country's previous best men's international result was winning CONCACAF Gold Cup championships in 1985 and 2000. The women's Olympic team won gold at the 2020 Tokyo Games.

"For Canadian sports history, it's going to be a moment where you're going to kind of know where you were when that moment happened," Johnston said. "That's something that is not lost on us. We know that not only are we writing history in Canadian soccer, but in Canadian sport, and that's a magical thing."

Just when it looked like 30 minutes of extra time was coming, Johnston's pass to the right side was cleared to the edge of the box and found Eustaquio, who drilled a clean strike into the bottom corner.

"It's just a moment of magic and something just comes over your body," Johnston said. "You see Steph sprinting away and just the whole team sprinting. It's one of those moments that you'll never forget."

Eustaquio became a Canadian hero in Los Angeles, where he played about 10 miles away in downtown for the MLS club LAFC. The 29-year-old midfielder was born in Canada and in his younger days played for Portugal, where his late parents were from.

In 2019, Eustaquio committed to play for the Canadian national team.

Eustaquio was quick to come down to Earth. "I don't want to say that the job is finished," he said. "We have to be humble, we have to recover well and we know that in six days we're going to have a very tough team." Canada play either the Netherlands or Morocco. AP

'PARENTS WATCHING FROM ABOVE'

Eustaquio suffered back-to-back blows when his mother died from brain cancer in 2023 and his father died of a heart attack in 2024. He remains close with brother Mauro, a former player and coach in the Canadian Premier League. "I couldn't think of a more deserving human being in a group of incredible human beings. I think from somewhere his parents are looking down and they saw that," said coach Jesse Marsch.

1 Eustaquio scored the first injury-time winner in a FIFA World Cup KO stage match since 2018 (Nacer Chadli for Belgium vs Japan).

3 Eustaquio became the third active MLS player to score a goal in a KO Stage match at the FIFA World Cup, joining Landon Donovan (2) and Brian McBride.

12 Canada became the first Concacaf nation to advance in the FIFA World Cup KO Stage since Costa Rica (on penalties) in the 2014 Rd of 16 vs Greece, 12 years ago.

PLAY ON: REFS ASKED TO KEEP GAME FLOWING

FIFA's push for fewer interruptions is helping make this World Cup faster, more physical and more attacking. Referees have been encouraged to let minor contact go, prioritising match flow instead of stopping play for small fouls

Pressing football: Experts say the lighter whistle is combining with modern football's pressing-heavy style to raise intensity. Players are covering similar total distances to past tournaments, but they are doing more high-speed running and sprinting. Teams now press aggressively not only to stop opponents building attacks, but also to win the ball back immediately after losing it. Former Premier League referee Mark Clattenburg praised the approach, saying the best referees allow the game to flow and let top players shine.

Physical strain: Conditioning coach Chris West said this has turned the tournament into a high-intensity competition. The faster rhythm is increasing physical strain, especially on muscles involved in explosive movement. Hamstrings, calves are seen as vulnerable under current demands.

- The tournament's more lenient officiating has been widely welcomed, but it is also exposing the physical limits of elite players.

High risk: Players returning from injuries or lacking full fitness are considered at higher risk. Neymar is dealing with a calf issue, while Brazil teammate Raphinha suffered a hamstring injury during the group stage. Christian Pulisic has been recovering from a calf injury, and England's Reece James has been managing a hamstring problem.

SOURCE: REUTERS

2.95 The group stage produced 2.95 goals per game, the highest rate of the modern World Cup era.

24.3 Fouls have dropped to 24.3 per game, down from 27.7 in 2022 and 29.3 in 2018. Yellow cards have fallen, though red cards have increased.

Can't buy me success: Truth hurts for Gulf nations like Saudi Arabia, Qatar

Saudi Clubs' Foreign Recruitment Drive Comes Into Question As They Host The World Cup In 2034

Atlanta: Gulf countries like Saudi Arabia and Qatar that poured a fortune into soccer and infrastructure experienced unceremonious exits from the World Cup, proving that big money doesn't guarantee success on the sport's biggest stage.

Saudi Arabia is out at the earliest point. Again. Bottom of a group that included tiny Cape Verde, the third-smallest nation ever to compete on this stage and into the knockouts for the first time.

By signing the likes of Cristiano Ronaldo, Neymar and Karim Benzema as part of a spectacular recruitment drive in recent years, Saudi Arabia have been a major disruptor of club football. But on the international stage they still have a long way to go eight years out from hosting the World Cup in 2034.

On Sunday, Saudi Arabian Football Federation president Yasser Al-Misehal resigned. Taking full responsibility for the failed World Cup campaign, he said that stepping aside will allow for a "new phase" of leadership within Saudi football.

Qatar, the host four years ago, are also on their way home after just three games, so too are the other gulf nations Iran and Iraq. Compared to the success of African teams at this World Cup, with nine out of 10 advancing to the round of 32, gulf nations are struggling mightily to make their mark. A goalless draw against Cape Verde ended Saudi Arabia's hopes of advancing from the group phase for the first time since 1994.

"It was not what we wanted because when playing in such a match against a team that is more or less the same level as us, our performance was not good. So this gives rise to concern," Saudi coach Georgios Donis said.

Qatar made history with their first point at a World Cup, scoring a dramatic late equalizer against Switzerland. But it was another disappointingly early exit after it was eliminated just two games into its home tournament in 2022. "I think that they show that at least we were able to compete in these kind of matches," coach Julen Lopetegui said.

The appointment of Lopetegui — the former Spain and Real Madrid coach — is evidence of the type of investment Qatar have made to try to boost performance on the global stage. Unlike Saudi Arabia, they have not embarked on such an audacious drive to attract aging stars from Europe to their domestic league.

Despite a population of 3 million people and only around 300,000 citizens, they have managed to develop enough homegrown players to win back-to-back Asian Cups in recent years and assert their dominance on a region that includes powers like Japan and South Korea. But they have not been able to translate those performances to the World Cup, and such an early exit marks a disappointment less than four years after hosting the tournament and spending billions of dollars to create eight state-of-the-art stadiums.

"We look to the future being optimistic about this for sure," said Lopetegui.

It's all about the future for Saudi Arabia, too, after winning the right to host the World Cup in 2034. They will want their national team to make a statement at the home tournament. "When we have these stars in the Arabian League, I think that the more competitive the competition, the better our players will be," said Donis. "But there needs to be a certain mentality."

Focus on development of homegrown talent is clear as 2034 approaches. US Soccer's sporting director Matt Crocker was lured away to head up talent development in Saudi Arabia and youth investment is said to have doubled over the past three years.

Iran have been competing in World Cups since 1978. They had to contend with difficulties regarding preparation and travel in the wake of war with the United States and only narrowly missed out on advancing after three draws. In seven appearances at the World Cup they have never gone beyond the groups. Likewise for Iraq in their two appearances 40 years apart. AP

After pulling off one of the biggest upsets in World Cup history by beating eventual champs Argentina four years ago, there was no standout moment from Saudi Arabia this time — failing to advance beyond the group phase for the sixth time in a row.

Norway's unique mindset gives them an edge

THEY ARE TAUGHT TO FALL IN LOVE WITH THE SPORT. SUPERSTARS CAN PLAY WITHOUT FEAR

Renedy Singh

Norway's return to the grandest stage in football, the World Cup, is not just because of a golden generation that includes stars like Erling Haaland and Martin Odegaard. It shows what a country can achieve if it supports young footballers and has a clear pathway from a young age.

In 2011, I was in Norway on trials, trying to break into Tromso IL, a top division team. I remember they were placed second at the time, behind Molde, managed by Manchester United legend Ole Gunnar Solskjær. For five months, I tried to impress the coach and fulfill my dream of playing abroad. But at 32, it was never going to be easy. I could not make it since only three foreign players were allowed.

Yet, the time I spent in Norway taught me a lot. Norway had made it to consecutive World Cups in 1994 and 1998, winning only one game at each of the two editions. Then, there was huge slump as Norway struggled to catch up. During my time there, I could see a different approach as the country made big investments in infrastructure, building artificial pitches, developing coaches, and laying out a pathway for young footballers.

You must remember that Norway league's quality is not exceptional but good. It's where many foreign players make their first stop before moving to bigger leagues. Work permit is an issue if you want to play in the Premier League, so stops elsewhere in Europe help. Nigeria's John Obi Mikel, who cut his professional teeth as a teenager in Norway, is a prime example.

Norway, as a nation, is among the richest in Europe. It's focus on healthcare and education gives them an edge. Everyone feels secure at a young age. After reaching the knockouts, Haaland said he "couldn't care too much" about the concluding group-stage game against France reflects this mindset.

There is no pressure, no massive expectations and superstars can enjoy themselves, even if playing at the World Cup. Children are encouraged to take to sports. The idea is to make everyone fall in love with the sport, not necessarily turn them into champions. Too much competition at a young age kills the joy of sport.

Strong govt support means any kid who cannot make it big in sports has something to fall back upon. That security is priceless.

Norway are back at the World Cup after 26 years, thanks to a faultless qualification campaign where they won all eight matches. Now they are up against Ivory Coast in the knockouts. Regardless of the stage, Haaland and Co. will approach this one without any pressure. And that makes them dangerous.

BULLSEYE FROM A DISTANCE

When the defence gets too tight, long-range shots can suddenly crack open games. Shots taken from a distance often renders the entire defence redundant, making it quite a spectacle. The WC group stage has seen some stunners. Here are the top five long-distance goals in which the ball covered improbable distances before crossing the goal line...

Kevin Pina (Cabo Verde)
31.23 metres

After Cabo Verde held Spain goalless, this was a sensational Kevin Pina strike in the 21st minute of their second group-stage match against Uruguay, which marked the team's first-ever World Cup goal. The match ended in a 2-2 draw. Cabo Verde have made it to the Round of 32

Anthony Elanga (Sweden)
29.17 metres

Sweden, another Round of 32 entrant, got the points needed to book a knockout slot with a 62nd-minute stunner by the Newcastle United forward, levelling the scores minutes after Japan had taken the lead

Kylian Mbappe (France)
27.06 metres

The French skipper fired a brace against Senegal in his side's 3-1 win. He is in the race for the Golden Boot with 4 goals. This second goal in stoppage time, scored from a distance, was a spectacular effort

Petar Sucic (Croatia)
27.04 metres

In his side's final league stage game against Ghana, the 22-year-old Inter Milan forward delivered a strike that put Croatia in the lead, eventually helping them win 2-1 and taking them through

Ecuador challenge Mexico fortress

Mexico City: Ecuador's late surge runs into Mexico's immaculate defence — and the weight of the Azteca Stadium atmosphere — when they face the co-hosts for a place in the last-16 on Tuesday. Ecuador made the last-32 the hard way, recovering from a 1-0 loss to Ivory Coast by drawing 0-0 against Curacao before reviving their campaign with a 2-1 comeback win over Germany.

That result changed the tone of Ecuador's campaign.

They found a route into the knockouts and face the challenge of sustaining that urgency against opponents who have yet to concede.

Mexico topped Group A with three wins, scoring six goals and conceding none, proving they can benefit from the home support at the Azteca that has helped them come into form. Their defensive record has been the defining feature of their tournament, giving Javier Aguirre's side a platform as they prepare for another high-pressure night. REUTERS

Iraq to probe failure

Baghdad: The Iraqi Olympic Committee said on Monday it will launch an investigation into the national team's disappointing World Cup campaign. Iraq's first appearance at the finals in 40 years was a harsh lesson, with the team losing all three group-stage matches. Iraqi Olympic Committee president Aqeel Muftin said a meeting would be held with officials from the Iraqi Football Association to assess the causes of the poor performance and outline a plan for improvement.

Czech coach Koubek resigns

WC exit exposes India's fault lines

Team's Loss To Aus Confirms Big Shortcomings In The Shortest Format

Manuja.Veerappa@timesofindia.com

For much of their Women's T20 World Cup campaign, which ended in heartbreak against Australia in the final group match at Lord's on Sunday, India lived on the edge. The reigning ODI world champions' league-stage exit was a reflection of collective failure, and one the team management will have to confront honestly. Summing up the campaign, captain Harmanpreet Kaur — whose own tournament was underwhelming until her explosive 56 off 27 balls against Australia — admitted India had fallen short when it mattered most.

WOMEN'S CRICKET

"Today we were in the game for quite some time, but still, I think we didn't play to our standards and, as a group, we need to rethink a lot of things," she said. "Throughout the tournament, we didn't play well against good teams. We need to improve."

UNINSPIRING BATTING

Only three Indian batters finished the tournament with a strike rate above 150, and Shafali Verma, at 151.69, was the lone top-order batter among them. India's biggest batting flaw was surprisingly basic: a lack of intent and at times imagination, in rotating the strike. Too often, the innings revolved around boundary-hitting instead of consistently finding singles and twos to keep the scoreboard moving and the bowlers under pressure. Smriti Mandhana, India's leading run-scorer with 205 runs, including two half-centuries, illustrated the point. Of those runs, 138 came in boundaries — despite her facing 146 deliveries — leaving only 67 runs through running between the wickets. The shortcoming was exposed against Australia, whose disciplined bowling denied India easy release shots. Smriti and Shafali put on 66 for the opening wicket, but the stand took 55 deliveries and left too much acceleration for the middle order.

That middle order never truly arrived. Jemimah Rodrigues managed 92 tournament runs, Yastika Bhatia scored 41 in three innings and Harmanpreet finished with 141, with 56 of those coming in the final game. India did reach 170/4 at Lord's but that total owed heavily to Harmanpreet's late burst rather than sustained pressure through the innings.

UNSETTLED BOWLING ATTACK

Spin remained India's strongest suit but the pace attack lacked both consistency and clarity. India used four seamers — Renuka Singh Thakur, Arundhati Reddy, Nandani Sharma and Kranti Gaud — rotating them through without allowing any combination to settle. Collectively, they bowled 26.1 overs, conceded 235 runs and claimed only five wickets. Their inexperience was evident whenever the opposition applied pressure, particularly against Australia. The standout performer was left-arm spinner Shree Charani, who finished with 14 wickets and gave India control in phases that their other departments could not sustain.

"If you look at our bowling attack, it's very inexperienced. Give us 18 months and this attack will be a different one," head coach Amol Muzumdar said.

POOR FIELDING

Fielding proved India's biggest undoing. Apart from the Australia match, India dropped 11 catches in their first four games. The costliest lapses came against South Africa, when Marizanne Kapp was put down twice — after Tazmin Brits had also been reprieved — before Kapp guided her side to victory with an unbeaten 81. That result ultimately altered India's semifinal equation.

LOOKING AHEAD

"We need to really go back and think how we're going to approach the T20 game and also be in that positive frame of mind," Muzumdar said. That rethink cannot be confined to tactics alone. It must extend to selection, role clarity and accountability.

Nervy Sinner survives scare

TIMES OF INDIA AT WIMBLEDON

Prajwal.Hegde@timesofindia.com

There was little of the authority that has come to define Jannik Sinner this season. The defending champion sprayed 52 unforced errors across three and a half hours, yet, when his Wimbledon title defence threatened to unravel, he recovered from two sets to one down to grind out victory. The 24-year-old's 4-6, 6-3, 6-7 (6), 6-2, 6-3 win over Miomir Kecmanovic was his 94th Grand Slam match victory, equalling Nicola Pietrangeli's all-time record for the most match wins in majors by an Italian player.

"I was a little tight in the beginning. I didn't play my best, but tried to get into it. It was my first official match on grass this year. I'm happy I turned it around. The third set was a tough one to swallow," Sinner said. "It was a very different feeling. There's a lot of nerves when you go down the stairs to the court."

The home crowd at SW19 endured a bruising opening day. After Emma Raducanu's late withdrawal on Sunday, Britain's Jack Draper, the injury-plagued former world No. 4, pulled out of the tournament, even as the mild afternoon sun offered respite from a blazing English summer. On Centre Court, there was little solace either, as Sinner spent much of the afternoon teetering on the brink, grappling with technical, tactical and physical problems.

COMEBACK WIN: Sinner

Sinner, playing his first match since his second-round exit at Roland Garros last month, where he appeared to wilt in the heat, returned to Centre Court with questions still hanging over him. Across the net stood the spirited world No. 50, Kecmanovic.

Little came easily. The Italian's shot selection was off; he went for drop shots from well behind the baseline, and his forehand misfired as he surrendered serve in the ninth game of the opening set. Kecmanovic, 26, seized the opportunity without hesitation. Even after Sinner surged 3-0 ahead in the second set, his movement remained laboured. As temperatures climbed to 24°C, he reached for the ice towel. Then, after levelling the match, Sinner suffered a nasty fall in the fifth game of the third set, his body appearing to jar as he slipped. Centre Court held its breath as the defending champion winced in pain before he responded immediately with a thunderous forehand on the next point, prompting an audible exhale from the crowd. Even so, there was little he could do as the Serbian reclaimed the lead.

Urged on by his box, including coaches Darren Cahill and Simone Vagnozzi, Sinner did well to pull himself out of trouble. As he moved towards levelling the match at two sets apiece, a red stain appeared on one corner of his shoe, sparking concern in the stands, though play continued without interruption.

On Court 3, Naomi Osaka, who had retired from her previous match — the WTA 500 final at Bad Homburg on Saturday — with a foot injury, arrived in a striking, kimono-inspired all-white look. Beneath the traditional styling, her match outfit was an elegant one-piece with floral appliques, micro-pleating and a curved hem.

The Japanese star was equally impressive on court, showing no sign of the injury that had troubled her just 48 hours earlier, as she recorded a 6-1, 7-5 win over France's Elsa Jacquemot.

All-round Tigers roar past Mystics

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Hubballi: Hubli Tigers ended their back-to-back losses with a 10-wicket win over Gulbarga Mystics in the Maharaja Trophy KSCA T20 tournament here on Monday.

In a match reduced to 15 overs a side due to rain, the Tigers restricted Mystics to 139, thanks to a fine bowling show by left-arm pacer Vaibhav Sharma (3/9).

In reply, the Tigers made light work of the target, with openers Mayank Agarwal (81 n.o, 38b; 8x4; 5x6) and Mohammed Taha (57 n.o; 35b; 4x4; 4x6) completing the chase with 17 balls to spare.

MAHARAJA TROPHY

Invited to bat, Mystics were dealt a double blow by the 19-year-old Vaibhav, who sent back both the openers Lochan Gowda and BR Sharath in the second over.

In his ensuing over, Vaibhav accounted for Prakhar Chaturvedi.

BLASTERS PREVAIL

In another rain-affected contest, table toppers Bengaluru Blasters registered an eight-run victory against Coastal Kings Mangaluru via the VJD method.

Brief scores: Gulbarga Mystics 139/6 in 15 overs (Thippa Reddy 51, Manish Pandey 35 n.o; Vaibhav Sharma 3-9) lost to Hubli Tigers 143/0 in 12.1 overs (Mayank Agarwal 81 n.o, Mohammed Taha 57 n.o). Costal Kings Mangaluru: 179/6 in 20 overs lost to Bengaluru Blasters 60 for no loss in seven overs (Bhuvan Raju 50 n.o)

'Sooryavanshi ready for international cricket'

Belfast: India assistant coach Ryan ten Doeschate has declared Vaibhav Sooryavanshi ready for international cricket but also made it clear that the 15-year-old will have to go through the same process that other players in the side have followed before being handed their debut.

Sooryavanshi's omission from the T20 series against Ireland has become a major talking point after the T20 world champion Indian team ended up being whitewashed 0-2, the second loss being by just one run here on Sunday.

"He (Sooryavanshi) is absolutely ready to play international cricket, there is no doubt about that but also Sanju Samson is a guy who went a long way to win us the World Cup three months ago," Ten Doeschate said.

"He has got a fairly good IPL, and it is important to give players confidence and message to the players, we want to give guys a long run in the team." PTI

Trump says Iran talks in Doha; WH to send Witkoff, Kushner

Tehran Denies Meet Scheduled: 'Only Technical Team To Visit'

Chidanand Rajghatta | TNN

Washington: US President Donald Trump said on Monday that American representatives will meet Iranian officials in Doha on Tuesday in a renewed attempt to salvage a peace process that was jolted by a weekend of fighting in the Persian Gulf, as both sides seek to project a sketchy MoU they have signed as a victory to their domestic audiences despite continuing differences.

"Iran has requested a meeting. It will take place tomorrow in Doha!" Trump declared Monday in a Truth Social post, portraying Tehran as having sought the latest round of talks. The White House later confirmed that senior envoys Steve Witkoff and Jared Kushner would participate in the discussions alongside technical teams working to implement the June 17 MoU.

Iran, however, offered a markedly different account. No talks are scheduled in the coming days, Iran's foreign ministry spokesperson Esmaeil Baghaei said in a statement on Monday, adding that an Iranian technical delegation will visit Qatar this week, but has no relation to US officials visiting the country. Tehran has not started negotiations for a final deal as these require the implementation of certain points of the MoU, which is Iran's priority currently, Baghaei added.

The latest diplomatic push from Washington follows a dangerous weekend in which the ceasefire effectively frayed after fresh attacks around the Strait of Hormuz.

According to US officials, Iranian strikes on commercial shipping and military targets prompted American retaliation, while Tehran argued it was responding to what it considers continued violations of understandings reached earlier this month. Mediators from Qatar and Oman subsequently worked to establish emergency de-escalation channels to prevent the confrontation from spiralling into a broader regional conflict.

At the heart of the dispute remains the strategic Strait of Hormuz. Washington insists on unrestricted international navigation, while Iran continues to assert an expansive security role over shipping routes near its coastline.

Other differences remain equally consequential, with Washington wanting durable guarantees against further attacks on commercial shipping and US interests and a nuclear wind-down, while Tehran continues to seek tangible sanctions relief and access to frozen financial assets before complying. Both sides also differ over sequencing: Washington argues that security commitments must come first, whereas Tehran maintains that economic concessions cannot remain a vague promise.

Despite the renewed violence, both govts are attempting to sell the MoU as evidence that their respective strategies have produced results. Trump has emphasised lower oil prices, freer navigation through the Gulf and what he characterises as Iran's willingness to return to negotiations, presenting the talks as proof that sustained military pressure has forced Tehran back to the table.

Whether the Doha meeting can produce a durable peace remains uncertain. The central political paradox has not changed: both govts need the agreement to succeed but remain unwilling to appear as though they yielded under pressure. Every missile exchange strengthens domestic critics of compromise, while every diplomatic breakthrough is quickly repackaged by each capital as proof that the other side blinked first.

'$6bn in frozen assets in Qatar to be released'

Iran's president said Monday that $6 billion in frozen Iranian assets would be released by Qatar as negotiations with the US were challenged by attacks across the Persian Gulf this weekend. Masoud Pezeshkian's mention of the funds appear aimed at selling the Iranian public on the interim deal, particularly as its grip on the Strait of Hormuz has been challenged by efforts to open Oman's territorial waters to both inbound and outbound traffic from the Persian Gulf. While US and Qatari officials have not publicly confirmed that transfer, the announcement allows Tehran to argue domestically that diplomacy is yielding concrete economic dividends rather than unilateral concessions, a narrative vital to the survival of the regime. Pezeshkian offered praise for the interim deal in comments published Monday by the state-run IRNA news agency, calling it "a great victory for the Iranian people." "Based on the plans made, $6 billion out of the total $12 billion of Iranian resources in Qatar will be released and returned to the country," he said. AGENCIES

After strike on ship, vessels avoid Oman route via Hormuz

London: Traffic through the Strait of Hormuz slowed sharply over the weekend as ships avoided a transit corridor off Oman after a fresh exchange of strikes between the US and Iran. Only four tankers and one container ship used the Omani southern corridor to enter the Gulf on Sunday, escorted by US Navy vessels, according to research firm HFI Research. No vessels used the route to leave the Gulf on Sunday, according to data by maritime tracking firm Kpler.

Traffic slowed on Saturday after a vessel was struck while transiting the strait — two days after another vessel was targeted on Thursday. Iran's deputy foreign minister Kazem Gharibabadi said Monday that Iran would oppose and obstruct any vessel transiting through Hormuz which has not been specified by Tehran. AGENCIES

Israel destroys Hezb underground infra in Lebanon

Cairo: The Israeli military has destroyed underground infrastructure used by Lebanese militant group Hezbollah in a village in southern Lebanon, according to an Israeli statement on Sunday. The US was informed ahead of the attack, which targeted a 656-ft-long tunnel in the town of Majdal Zoun, according to a joint statement by PM Netanyahu and defence minister Israel Katz. It statement said the tunnel contained hundreds of weapons and launchers. The attack comes hours after the Israeli military said it struck Hezbollah militants in the Nabatieh area of Lebanon. US SC backs firing of trade body member, expands prez power

SC rejects Trump's push to toss verdict in E Jean Carroll sexual abuse case

Washington: The US Supreme Court on Monday backed President Donald Trump's firing of a Democratic Federal Trade Commission (FTC) member, expanding his powers over govt and overturning a 1935 precedent that had recognised the authority of Congress to protect leaders of certain regulatory agencies from presidential removal at will.

The justices, in a 6-3 decision powered by the court's conservative majority, invalidated tenure protections for FTC members enacted by Congress more than a century ago. In doing so, the justices overruled the court's pivotal decision in a case called Humphrey's Executor vs US. Trump last year dismissed the FTC's Rebecca Slaughter over policy differences.

In another landmark ruling on Monday, the court refused to let Trump fire Federal Reserve governor Lisa Cook as it stood firm to preserve the central bank's independence. Trump welcomed the ruling concerning Slaughter as a "BIG WIN." He said the decision was "confirming Presidential Power in our Country to remove Executive Branch Officers and Agency Appointees, or Representatives, under Article II."

The US Supreme Court declined on Monday to hear President Trump's bid to overturn a $5 million verdict in favour of E. Jean Carroll in a case in which a jury found him liable for sexually abusing the former columnist and then defaming her.

The justices turned away Trump's appeal after a lower court upheld the 2023 jury verdict and rejected Trump's arguments that the trial was unfair. Trump has been battling Carroll ever since she published an excerpt from her memoir in 2019 in which she alleged that Trump had raped her around 1996 in Manhattan. REUTERS

"This Decision was long sought by United States Presidents, dating all the way back to the 1930s," Trump wrote, calling the decision "one of the most important ever given with respect to Presidential Powers." Slaughter said she was disappointed with the Supreme Court's ruling and "shocked when the court overturns a unanimous 91-year-old precedent that has been used to shape so much of our govt institutions." Will hand more power to local govts if I become PM: Burnham

Manchester: Andy Burnham, likely to be the next UK prime minister, pledged Monday to give away a chunk of his power by handing greater autonomy to local leaders in a "circuit-breaker" for the sclerotic British state. The former mayor of Greater Manchester also said he would move part of the prime minister's office from London's 10 Downing St. to northwest England as part of "the biggest rebalancing of power our country has seen."

"Growth cannot be ordered from the top down. Instead, it can only be nurtured from the bottom up," Burnham said in his speech.

"If councils can't fix potholes, what chance do they have of bringing forward major regeneration schemes to get growth going?" Burnham said. He set out a 10-year plan to get "good growth in every postcode," in a country where wealth and power are concentrated in London and the south of England.

His speech was short on specifics about where govt would find more money. He said he would reverse almost two decades of low growth since the 2008 financial crisis harnessing private and public money to invest in transport, housing and infrastructure. He also pledged to create new industrial jobs and to reform the UK's expensive privatised water and energy utilities. AP

Putin ready for peace talks but will not halt long-range hits

Russian President Vladimir Putin said he's ready to continue talks with US envoys on ending the war in Ukraine, while rejecting a proposal to halt long-range strikes that have proven damaging for both sides.

The Kremlin expects US negotiators Steve Witkoff and Jared Kushner to travel to Moscow to continue talks on ending the war in Ukraine once Washington is less focused on the conflict with Iran, Putin said in an interview late Sunday.

"We're ready to continue negotiations and discussion of the details and modalities — if not agreements, then at least the topics discussed in Anchorage," he said, referring to talks with US President Donald Trump last Aug in Alaska. "Our retaliatory strikes deep into Ukrainian territory are much more powerful, sensitive and, frankly, destructive, leading to truly serious consequences" for Kyiv, Putin said, without naming the source of the proposals. Caracas hit by aftershocks, rescue ops in critical phase

Caracas: Residents of Caracas woke up Monday to an aftershock that rocked their houses, while rescue teams continued their fourth day of round-the-clock work in the areas affected by last week's earthquakes in Venezuela. A 4.6-magnitude aftershock centred at a depth of 10 kms hit north of the Venezuelan capital Caracas early on Monday, according to the US geological survey. No damage was immediately reported from the aftershock, the president of the national assembly, Jorge Rodriguez, said.

Rescue efforts have been focusing on La Guaira, the hardest-hit state. Wednesday's twin earthquakes have left close to 1,500 people dead. The country has received support from 24 countries, which have sent over 500 metric tons of supplies, more than 2,700 rescue and support personnel and about 86 canine teams, according to authorities. 28 civilians killed in Pak air op in Afghanistan: UN

Pakistan Claims Those Killed Are Militants

Kabul: At least 28 civilians were killed and 49 injured in air strikes carried out by Pakistan on its border with Afghanistan, the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA) said on Monday. Pakistan's security forces said they had killed at least 29 militants in ground and air operations along the Afghanistan border, while the Afghan Taliban said at least 38 civilians had been killed in airstrikes. UNAMA said that the number of casualties could rise as hospitals continue to treat the injured.

Sunday's aerial assault was Pakistan's second on targets in Afghanistan that it said belonged to militants, and threatened to exacerbate an intermittent conflict between the former allies, who fought their worst battle in years in Feb.

Pakistan's air strikes on three targets in the Afghan provinces of Paktia, Paktika and Kunar killed 25 militants while destroying "large quantities" of weapons and ammunition, information minister Attaullah Tarar said on X on Monday. Four more fighters linked to the Jamaat-ul-Ahrar faction of Pakistan's Taliban were killed in ground attacks in the Bajaur district.

Afghan govt spokesperson Hamdullah Fitrat said the strikes had killed 38 civilians and injured 163, including women and children. He said the bulk of the casualties stemmed from Pakistani jets bombing a home in Paktia province, killing 28.

Afghanistan's deputy information minister Mohajer Farahi said that the "attack will certainly be avenged at the appropriate time". REUTERS

6 killed in shooting at youth welfare facility in Germany

Berlin: A shooting at a youth welfare facility in northern Germany on Monday left six people dead, police said. The suspected shooter was arrested. Five people " four women and one man " died at the scene of the shooting in Stade, police said. A sixth, also an adult, died later at a hospital.

Police said several people were wounded, some of them seriously, German news agency dpa reported, but they did not give a specific figure or information on the victims' identity. Police said the shooting took place in the facility on Dankersstrasse, a street south of the town centre.

A main suspect was arrested, while another two people were subject to "police measures" on suspicion of involvement, police said. The suspect was in a custody dispute over his three-month-old daughter, police said.

Germany has some of Europe's strictest gun laws — they require anyone under 25 to pass a psychiatric exam before applying for a gun licence — and mass shootings are relatively rare. But they occur from time to time. In Feb 2020, an extremist shot dead nine people and wounded five in thecity of Hanau. In March 2023 a disgruntled former Jehovah's Witness member shot dead six people in Hamburg. In May 2022 a 21-year-old gunman opened fire at a secondary school in northern Germany, injuring a staffer. AGENCIES

China slaps export controls on 20 more Japanese entities

Beijing: China put 20 more Japanese organisations on a blacklist on Monday over the export of items with both military and civilian possible uses, adding fuel to a months-long row with Tokyo. The new additions, including major companies, "have participated in enhancing Japan's military capabilities", the Chinese commerce ministry said in a statement.

Japan's govt spokesman Minoru Kihara called the measures "unacceptable" and said Tokyo had "lodged a strong protest and demanded that the measures be withdrawn". The two countries have had strained relations since Japanese PM Sanae Takaichi suggested in Nov that Tokyo may react militarily to an attack on Taiwan. Chinese authorities ramped up pressure in Feb by imposing export restrictions on dozens of Japanese firms over their alleged involvement in building up the country's military. AFP

Tarique: Will implement Teesta project at any cost

Ahsan Tasnim

Dhaka: Bangladesh PM Tarique Rahman Monday said the "national priority" Teesta Barrage Master Plan will be implemented at "any cost", days after Dhaka and Beijing agreed to work on the management of Teesta and other rivers — most flowing from upstream in India — and Beijing stressing their "cooperation does not target any third party".

Tarique, during his last week visit to China, was assured by Beijing of its unwavering support, "no matter how the world changes", and at a June 26 press briefing, when asked about the Teesta river projects in relation to India, Chinese foreign ministry spokesperson Guo Jiakun said, "I would like to stress that China-Bangladesh cooperation does not target any third party." "Govt is committed to resolving the country's long-standing water management challenges through major investments in rivers, canals and irrigation infrastructure," Tarique said.

Tarique said water remains one of the most pressing concerns for people in the Rajshahi and Rangpur regions — bordering India's northeast region — and "we are working relentlessly to address these problems". In the regular briefing, Jiakun had also said, "The comprehensive treatment and rehabilitation of the Teesta River is a livelihood project the Bangladeshi side attaches high importance to."

Tarique, said BNP govt has initiated plans to build the Padma Barrage as excess water during the monsoon would be stored and utilised during the dry season for agriculture.

Jamaat ally wants India's apology for 'sheltering' those involved in 'killings'

Dhaka: Newly appointed Indian high commissioner to Bangladesh Dinesh Trivedi should apologise for India "sheltering" individuals involved in "mass killings and political violence", a key ally of Bangladesh's largest Islamist party Jamaat-e-Islami has demanded, reports Ahsan Tasmin. "India gave direct and indirect support to Awami League govt for 16 years-...for the abuses committed during its rule," opposition chief whip and NCP convener Nahid Islam claimed in parliament on Sunday, in a reference to India-Bangladesh ties during the Sheikh Hasina govt and her living in India after an uprising that led to her ouster as PM in 2024. "The new Indian high commissioner should have begun (his assignment in Dhaka started on June 25) by offering an apology. India owes Bangladesh an apology for these," he said.

Macron reappears in viral aviator sunglasses with 'eye problems'

Macro with the Sultan of Oman, Haitham bin Tariq, at Elysee Palace

French President Emmanuel Macron reappeared on Monday wearing now-iconic aviator sunglasses that caused a stir at the Davos forum when he wore them due to an eye condition during a speech standing up to Donald Trump. Macron was sporting the blue-tinted shades on the steps of the Elysee Palace as he welcomed the Sultan of Oman, Haitham bin Tariq. But his eyewear choice wasn't to block the midday sun in Paris, but again because of "an eye problem", staff said, without giving further details. The president continued to wear his sunglasses during a signing ceremony inside the presidential palace alongside the sultan, and later at a hotel for a Franco-Omani business forum.

For or against AC? EU won't pick sides: The EU refused to be drawn into a heating political debate on the merits of air conditioning on Monday, saying it was not for Brussels to micromanage how people cool their homes. AC has become a hot political topic in France in particular with party leaders coming out starkly for or against its broader use, as Europe swelters under a record-breaking heatwave. "I doubt we have a particular view or position on air conditioning," European Commission spokeswoman Anna-Kaisa Itkonen told journalists when asked whether the bloc backed either camp. Europeans have traditionally used AC much less than other parts of the world, with many there seeing the US staple as environmentally unfriendly, energy guzzling and a potential spreader of germs. In France the issue has become highly political ahead of elections next year. Far-right leader Marine Le Pen said she wants air conditioning for all, while at the other end of the spectrum her hard-left rival Jean-Luc Melenchon calls it "a false solution that makes the problem worse".

Heatwave now grips Italy, Balkans; fears of wildfires grow

Belgrade/Rome: Italy and the Balkans felt the impact on Monday of the record-breaking heatwave that has caused hundreds of excess deaths and disrupted daily life across the continent for more than a week, with growing concerns over the spread of wildfires.

There was also a warning that the heat was likely to build again from the start of next week in countries such as France and Germany that bore the brunt over the past few days.

In Italy, 22 cities from Bolzano in the north to Palermo on the southern island of Sicily were covered by a red heat warning. Pilgrims at the Vatican used fans to cool themselves and sheltered under umbrellas for shade as Pope Leo delivered his Angelus message from a balcony to the crowd below on the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul, a holiday in the city of Rome.

In Croatia, the weather service issued a red alert on Monday for regions including the capital Zagreb and the tourist destinations of Split and Dubrovnik. Dozens of firefighters, assisted by four aircraft, battled a wildfire burning pine forests on the tourist island of Vis in the Adriatic Sea, some 55 kms southwest of Split.

In neighbouring Serbia, the State Hydrometeorological Service has warned temperatures would reach 39°Celsius on Monday. Further south, Albania contained a wildfire that has consumed many hectares of bushes and olive trees near the southern village of Klos over the weekend.

Scientists have said the heatwave, which began on June 20, was the worst recorded in Europe, and the blistering conditions have disrupted power generation, damaged infrastructure and overwhelmed healthcare systems. France has reported 1,000 excess deaths during the heatwave.

Heat to rise again

Luca Mercalli, the president of Italy's Meteorological Society, said temperatures were set to soar again from July 5-6. "The areas affected look broadly the same as in the first wave, including France, Spain, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and to some extent Britain," he said. "With the extreme heat the risk of forest fires increases, but we are also seeing a lot of rainstorms," he added.

Further tragedies related to the heat were reported at the weekend. Two boys aged 8 and 10 from Bulgaria were found dead in a car in Cyprus on Sunday, police said. Cyprus is experiencing temperatures of 38°C. Two cyclists died while taking part in an event near Warsaw Sunday. Temperatures in Poland reached a record high on Sunday at 40.5°C. REUTERS
